

FIELDS' STORY IS FABRICATION, U.S. SLEUTH ASSERTS

Arrested in Buffalo One Day
After Taylor Murdered, Officer Declares.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 27.—Guy Broughton, a federal narcotic agent of this district, last night said Harry M. Fields, under arrest in Detroit, and who professes to have driven an automobile that carried the slayer of William Desmond Taylor in Los Angeles, February 1, could not have been in Los Angeles on that day. Broughton said he arrested Fields in Buffalo, N. Y., February 2, one day after the slaying. Broughton said Fields was taken into custody on a drug "peddling" charge and later turned over to Detroit authorities where he was wanted for passing worthless checks. Broughton expressed the opinion Fields' story was a fabrication picked up from details in an effort to get out of his present trouble.

WIFE DISCREDITS FIELDS.
DETROIT, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Harry Fields, wife of the convicted forger in jail here, today partially discredited her husband's story that he knew the "inside" of the murder of William D. Taylor, Los Angeles movie director. Mrs. Fields, in a message from Seattle, denied her husband visited her there February 3, as he stated in his "confession." The woman said, however, that Fields' statements that he was a drug addict and had long been associated with drug vendors, were true.

Five Killed 23 Hurt in Week-End Auto Accidents

juries. Coroner Grant D. Miller, who is investigating the accident, said today that no action would be taken against the driver of the death car until after the inquest, the date of which has not been set. Alfred Bonugli died at the San Francisco hospital last night from injuries sustained when he was run down by an automobile while playing in Pacific street near Mason street, San Francisco, yesterday. Joseph Gramanta, son of John Gramanta, 1301 Kearny street, San Francisco, driver of the car that struck the little boy, was arrested and charged with reckless driving.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.
 Mrs. McKean was killed instantly and five other persons, occupants of the same machine, were injured, when the machine driven by her husband, plunged over a 15-foot embankment on the Crystal Springs road, two miles west of San Mateo, last yesterday. A few minutes after the McKean car skidded from the highway and crashed over the bank into a creek, C. Nolan, a passing motorist, heard cries for assistance.

He stopped and found several of the McKean party pinned beneath the wreckage. Mrs. McKean was dead when she was extricated from the wrecked machine. The injured and the body of the dead woman were taken to Mills hospital in San Mateo. McKean told the San Mateo police that he lost control of his machine when it started to skid. Miss Windley died last night from injuries received earlier in the evening. Her death occurred at the St. Francis hospital, San Francisco. A fractured skull caused her death. She was struck by a machine whose driver speeded away after the tragedy. Police detectives are making an effort to locate him today. The accident took place at Van Ness avenue and Eddy street, San Francisco. Witnesses say that the driver of the death car was speeding.

INTO WOMAN'S DEATH.
 A coroner's inquest was to be held in San Jose today into the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Pereira of Evergreen, who was killed instantly in an automobile accident on the Piedmont road, northeast of San Jose, last Saturday night. Evidence in the hands of officers who investigated the accident leads them to the conclusion that the dead woman's husband, driving the car, was blameless. The headlights on Pereira's car were dim and he failed to see a car coming from the rear. The result that his automobile leaped from the road and crashed into a tree.

Mrs. Pereira was thrown through the windshield by the force of the impact and she was virtually decapitated. She had no other injuries, nor was her husband, seated beside her, injured, according to Coroner Amos Williams.

Robert Vasquez was struck Saturday night by an automobile at First and Harrison streets, San Francisco. The automobile was driven by Fred Rapp, 3 Goodwill place, that city. Brignetti was injured when his automobile collided with a car driven by Dr. C. F. Welty, 18 Presidio terrace, San Francisco, at Geary street and Arguello boulevard, that city, last night. Both cars were damaged. Dr. Welty was not hurt and Brignetti was treated at the Park emergency hospital.

Swerving to avoid a collision with another machine, Gaw drove his automobile into an electric light pole in front of 1214 Fell street, San Francisco, early yesterday. Gaw was thrown through the windshield and badly cut. Several of his ribs were fractured.

Stennett Ataton was playing in the middle of East Fourteenth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues yesterday when run down by an automobile driven by Edward Childress, 3304 Chestnut street, Oakland. His condition was serious. While running after a street car Mrs. Kelbar was struck down at Market and Franklin streets, San Francisco, early yesterday morning by an automobile driven by Frank Eisenmann, 1037 Fillmore street, that city.

James Sidney and Alice Cocksley were injured when the machine in which they were riding yesterday skidded into a telephone pole at Hayes and Fillmore streets, San Francisco. Anderson was hurt when his motorcycle skidded and left the road yesterday near Hayward.

WOMAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS ON TRACK.
 Mrs. Gonzales was found in an unconscious condition lying across the car tracks in Ashland late Saturday night. She had been struck by an automobile, which did not stop. She was taken to the county hospital. There she was identified several hours later. She is in a serious condition, according to doctors. Mrs. Gonzales is the mother of nine children. Antonio Marini of Redwood City was seriously injured late yesterday at "Five Points," on the San Francisco highway, one mile south of Redwood City, when his motorcycle collided with an automobile driven by Peter Butto, Redwood City. Marimodo was hurt when he was struck by a machine driven by James Peters, 2715 Scott avenue, San Francisco, at Pacific street and Grant avenue, that city. The injured man was taken to the Harbor emergency hospital and Peters was charged with reckless driving.

Struck by an automobile at Golden Gate avenue and Fillmore street, San Francisco, Rose Kelly suffered a broken leg. The automobile was being driven by Lawrence Lindbloom, 1511 Baker street, San Francisco. Miss Argyle was treated at the Central emergency hospital for injuries received when an automobile in which she was riding with Albert A. Kelley, 2277 Sutter street, San Francisco, struck a telephone pole at Grove and Larkin streets. George Das was hurt when he was run down at San Pablo avenue and Cutting road, in Contra Costa county, yesterday by a motorist who ran away without offering assistance. The boy was picked up by Mrs. Edward W. Pike, 1907 Marine avenue, Albany, and taken to the Berkeley emergency hospital.

Mrs. Burkhardt was injured in an automobile collision at Twenty-fifth avenue and Geary street, San Francisco, last night. She was riding in a machine with her husband, C. E. Burkhardt, and their five-year-old niece, Alice Davis. According to the police the Burkhardt machine was struck by a car driven by George F. Pierce, 1414 McAllister street, and overturned. All of the occupants were thrown to the pavement, but Mrs. Burkhardt was the only one injured.

Pierce and three companions, York Corn, J. J. Kinross and W. L. Maney, were all arrested and taken to the police station where they were charged with driving away without rendering aid to the injured.

Eunice Larsen and Harvey Nelson were sitting on the sidewalk playing in front of the Larsen home in Alameda, when an automobile, driven by H. Hansen, 1515 Minturn street, crashed up on the sidewalk and ran over the two children. Hansen was backing his car to turn around when he lost control, he told the police. He was unable to stop until after he had hit the children. They were taken to the Alameda emergency hospital.

OWNER OF AUTO HELD LIABLE FOR EMPLOYEE'S ACT

If an employee drives his employer's automobile into another automobile while going to or returning from lunch and the automobile is being driven with the consent of his employer, the employer is liable for resultant damages, according to Superior Judge George S. Samuels.

WIRE SENT EAST TWO HOURS AFTER BODY DISCOVERED

Police Question Woman Regarding Telegram Telling of Taylor's Murder.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—Sheriff's deputies have made public the following telegram which they said had been filed for transmission in a Hollywood telegraph office at 10:08 the morning of February 2, a "little more than two hours after William Desmond Taylor's body was found." "Mrs. George A. Freeman, Shipping Point, Stamford, Ct.

"Pete Tanner fatally shot behind right ear in his apartment this morning. Ask Ethel Daisy if I can do anything. Should I send flowers in Ethel Daisy's name. Consternation among movie colony. No details available yet.

TO NOTIFY DAUGHTER.
 The officers stated they had obtained from Miss Marion Graham, advertising manager for a Hollywood publication, admission she had sent the telegram and that she had known Taylor in New York under the name of Tanner when his daughter, Ethel Daisy, was a year old. She said when she first met him in Hollywood he had denied he was Tanner, but later admitted it.

"When Miss Graham sent me that telegram from Los Angeles, it was for the express purpose of having me notify Taylor's daughter, Ethel Daisy, of her father's death. Before she would read in the newspapers the account of her father's murder. That was her only motive.

"Although the telegram she sent me was timed 10:08, less than three hours after his body was found, I firmly believe the statement she has made to the authorities out there that she learned of the murder through the newspapers."

Chicago Evidence Sought by Ar buckle

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Signs of a determined battle on the part of Patty Arbuckle were made evident in the Superior Court today with the request by his lawyers to obtain the depositions of five residents of Chicago, three of whom are plaintiffs.

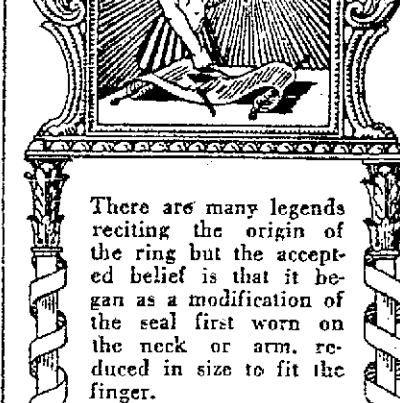

Attorneys Mat Schmulowitz, Joseph McInerney and Charles Brennan appeared before Superior Judge Louderback and asked for permission to depose the witnesses. The names of the persons desired to be questioned are Dr. Samuel S. Graves, Dr. George W. Miller, Dr. Fred Van Arsdale, Edward F. Byrne and T. V. Teeters.

The Chicago witnesses are said to have been acquainted with the habits of Virginia Rappe, movie actress, whose death resulted in the placing of the manslaughter charge against the comedian.

The month of April was called Ooster, or Easter month, by the Anglo-Saxons, and grass month by the Dutch.

STORM CRIPPLES TRANSPORTATION, DEVASTATES EAST

Scores of Towns in Wisconsin, Minnesota Isolated by 72-Hour Blizzard.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27. (By International News Service).—Transportation and communication conditions throughout Wisconsin, Minnesota and parts of Illinois and Iowa were still in a chaotic state today as the result of the storm which began last Tuesday. Scores of smaller towns throughout the region were still cut off from telegraphic and telephonic communication and train schedules were demoralized.

Only one train has reached Traverse City, Mich., since Tuesday afternoon. Thousands of telephone and telegraph poles are down. Overhanging and uprooted trees are strewn over large areas.

GAME BIRDS FROZEN.
In the Traverse City region, the storm raged for 72 hours. Game birds were driven into farmyards seeking food when their customary feeding grounds were buried beneath snow and ice.

Reports from Wisconsin say eight railroad wrecks due to the storm have occurred. Miles of telegraph and telephone poles are down and damage estimated at more than $200,000 has been caused to telephone facilities alone.

FLOOD FEARED.
The overflowing of its banks by the Peconic river near Freeport, Ill., has caused fears of a disastrous flood in that section. Weighted freight cars are being used on railroad bridges to protect them from the torrents.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Feb. 27.—The Michigan apple belt, ice-bound since last mid-week, was a sorry spectacle today when cities and towns had broken through the frozen crust and re-established communication. Thousands of trees were down, wire lines wrecked and the ice

Prisoner Escapes From Sonoma Officer

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—William Groves, alias Grant, a prisoner en route to Santa Rosa, escaped from Deputy Sheriff Robinson of Sonoma county while in a crowd at the Third and Townsend street depot this morning. Robinson had brought his prisoner from Monterey, where he was arrested, and on arriving at the station here sent for a taxi. As he was arranging for the machine Groves saw his chance and made a break through the crowd. Robinson drew his pistol but was afraid to fire on account of so many pedestrians, and the man escaped. The police have a good description of him and expect to pick him up.

Great for children to play with
In the March issue of the Pictorial Review is a very interesting article on how the city of Visalia, California, has developed home play times with the children. Read it, mothers and fathers. Among other things it recommends for little tots under three years big brightly colored balls. We have a varied stock of these and have found them very popular. If you have a little child in your home, come and see them.

Condemned Slayer Is Mental Suicide, Scientists Assert

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Medical and psychological experts who for thirty days have been watching the desperate effort of Harvey W. Church, double slayer, sentenced to hang Friday, to cheat the gallows by starving himself to death, yesterday declared that he had succeeded in committing mental suicide.

According to Dr. Norman Copeland, who has been directing the work that has foiled Church's hunger strike through forcible feeding during the past two weeks, the physical crisis in the youth's condition has passed and he will live physically.

Other physicians, however, assert that Church already is mentally dead. He is not insane, they say, but has reduced himself to such a state of self-hypnosis that he will feel no pain when the trap is sprung Friday.
Church's hunger strike began more than thirty days ago. For the past two weeks he has been forcibly fed, but seems insensible to pins stuck into his flesh or any other efforts to arouse him.
"At times we are not even sure he is breathing," the death watch said. "It would be easier to sit beside a corpse."

What's Happening in the Motor World

John North Willys, president of the Willys Overland company of Toledo, and Sir Charles Y. Knight, inventor of the Knight motor, arrived here this morning from the East.
They were greeted by automobile men and managers of the Overland organization on the Pacific coast including Herbert D. Bell of Bell and Boyd, local dealers, and E. C. Culver, president of the Willys-Overland Pacific company.
Willys is one of the best known men in the automotive industry and has been manufacturing cars for many years.
Knight is the inventor of the well known Knight motor, which is used in many of the famous high priced European cars and which was developed for quantity production by Willys in his Toledo plants. Knight was knighted by the British government for the work he did during the war in developing motors and war machines. His permanent home is in California.
Several conferences will be held of Overland officials on the Pacific coast beginning tomorrow morning in San Francisco. Dealers will assemble from all parts of the state to meet their chief, and the inventor of the motor used in the Willys Knight car which they are selling.

Reformer Worse Than Flapper, Says Hunter

"What is worse than a flapper? A reformer."

This question was asked and answered by Superintendent of Schools Fred M. Hunter at a meeting in the Studebaker theater in Chicago last night, when he addressed the delegates to the National Education Association.

"Personally I would rather see the high school girl in short skirts, gaiters and rolled hose than in some of the more prudish styles that many of the more radical reformers would have them adopt," said Hunter. "There are worse things than bobbed hair, short dresses, rolled hose and modern dances."

"I do believe, though, that cigarette smoking should be discouraged."

The other speaker of the evening was Professor E. A. Ross of the department of sociology of the University of Wisconsin, who told the convention that children should be taught to do right by reason and not frightened with stories of hell and brimstone and told that they will be consigned to perdition unless they obey the laws of religion.

ROCKRIDGE FAILS TO GET CAR LINE

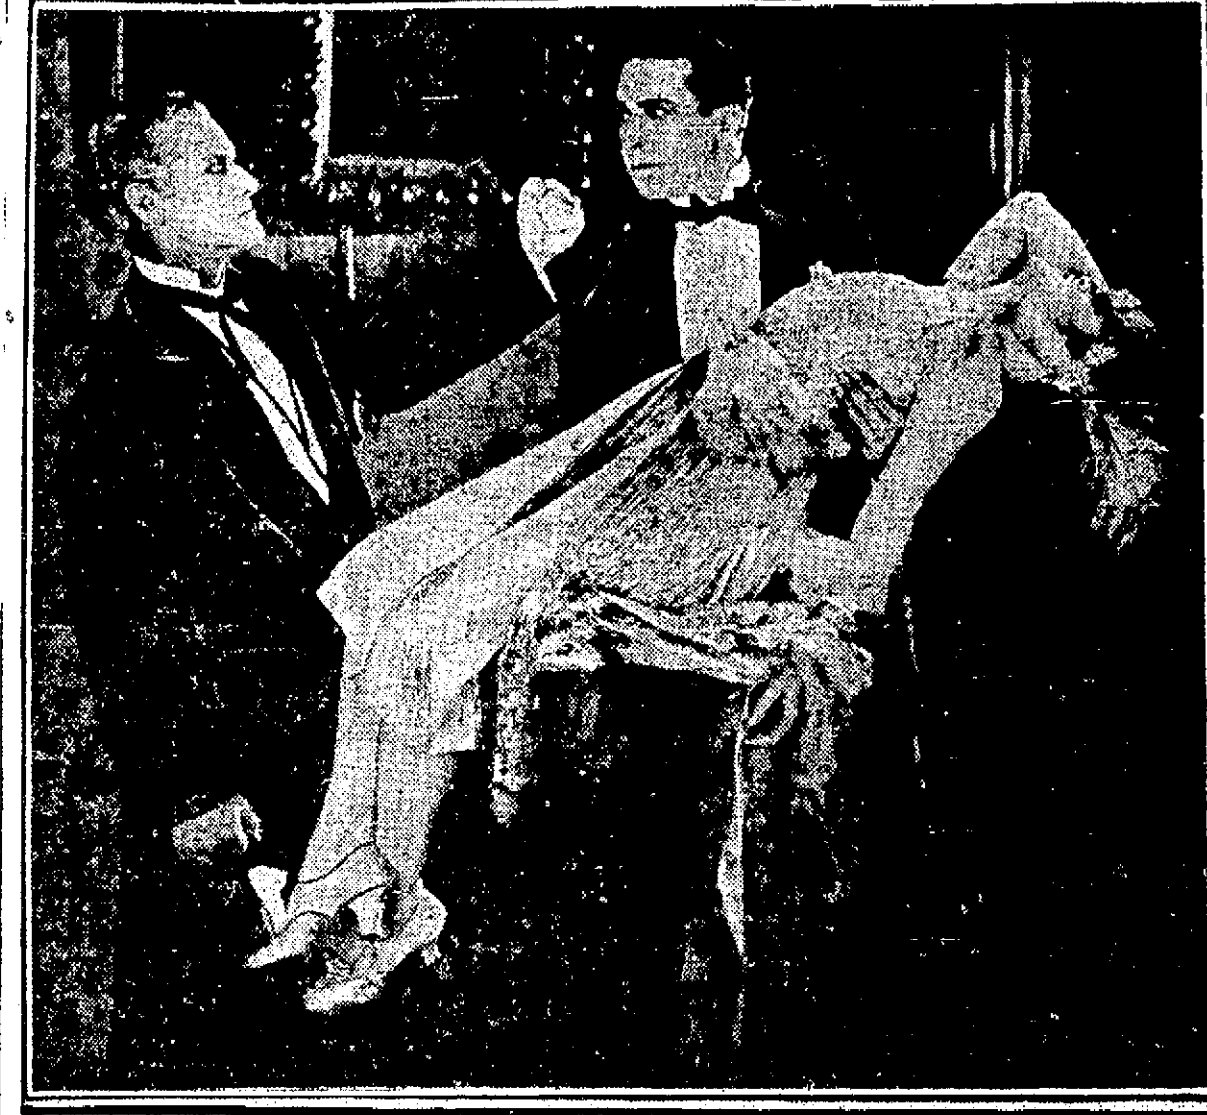

The ordinance closing a block on East Eleventh street and abandoning it, to allow the Prince Canning company to expand, was passed to print by the city council this morning, the city to get deeds to other property surrendered by the canner in lieu of the street.

"It is a bad precedent to close this street before the others are opened," commented Commissioner Edwards. "We will see that Eleventh is kept open till the other work is done," promised Commissioner Bacchus.

A communication was received from the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal railway saying that it cannot comply with the recent request of the council to extend Key Route service to Rockridge.

"Transbay rates are not sufficient to remunerate for the present service furnished," says the railway. "Hence, we cannot see our way clear to extend a car line that does not pay its own expenses."

ALAMEDA CHAMBER SECRETARY LAUDS ARMS CONCLAVE

One of Greatest Achievements of Modern Civilization, Wilson States.

ALAMEDA, Feb. 27.—The disarmament congress has proved to be one of the most hopeful signs in modern civilization of a new and more rational basis of cooperation and understanding among the nations, according to C. C. Wilson, secretary of the Alameda Chamber of Commerce. Wilson spoke at the second community forum at the Adelphi club on Saturday night.

"It is the general consensus of opinion among the most prominent news editors of the country that the arms party at Washington is one of the greatest achievements of modern civilization," stated Wilson. "Navalism has been dealt its death blow, the stupendous and disastrous waste occasioned by the competition in armaments has been arrested and the regulation of submarine activities and the abolition of poisonous gases have been brought about. Above all, the conference has proved to the world the practicality of arbitration as a means of settling international disputes. And this is the most hopeful sign of a new and more rational basis of cooperation and understanding among nations, and a step which must inevitably do away with war."

Commencing next week the forum will meet on Thursday evenings. Wilson will start a course of systematic study of philosophy from the standpoint of religion and mysticism.

Wrong Name Used by Shoplifting Couple

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 27.—George L. Warren, wealthy president of the Central Michigan Paper Company, in a wire to George C. Clark, secretary of the company, denied that he and his wife were the persons convicted in Los Angeles Saturday of shoplifting in a department store.

"I am a victim of false impersonation," the message read. "Not person referred to in news item. Matter under investigation."

WHAT CAUSES GAS ON THE STOMACH?

It is caused by fermenting, sour waste matter in the intestines. This old, foul matter should be thoroughly cleaned out with simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as in Adler-Lika. This acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing old accumulated matter you never thought was in your system. Adler-Lika relieves ANY CASE gas on the stomach. EXCELLENT for sour stomach and chronic constipation. Guards against appendicitis. Osgood Brothers, Druggists.—Advertisement.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never form them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth," bad breath, a "lumpy" or "lumpy" feeling, sick headache, torpid liver, constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

No film shown thus far this season in the Eastbay cities has proved so tremendous a drawing card as "Peacock Alley," the spectacular Mae Murray production now being shown on the American. Despite the inclusion of a special matinee each day at 11:30 o'clock in the morning, the management has found it impossible to accommodate the hosts of patrons and the film has been held over for a second week.

The popularity of "Peacock Alley" is attributed to a combination of lavish splendence and wholesome human interest coupled with the perfect dramatic presentation of the vivacious and charming Mae Murray. Probably no other actress in screenland could have carried the leading role of Cleo of Paris with such perfection as the beautiful blonde star.

The picture is adapted from the famous story by Ouida Bergere and was directed by Robert Z. Leonard, husband of Mae Murray. Other choice film offerings and a specially arranged concert by John Wharry Lewis and his orchestra round out the American bill.

"DADDY OSCAR" IS PUZZLE IN FLIER'S DIVORCE

"Where is 'Daddy Oscar'?" This query, alleged to have been propounded by his three-year-old son, is said by Charles R. Parmelee, Oakland aviator, to have prompted him to seek out "Daddy Oscar."

Now Parmelee has filed a suit in Los Angeles for $50,000 against Oscar V. Beckman and his parents, whom he accuses of alienating the affections of Mrs. Parmelee while she was on a visit to Hermosa Beach last summer. The suit is coming up in the Los Angeles courts.

Today Parmelee experienced his first trouble when the Court awarded Mrs. Parmelee $200 for the purpose of securing depositions. Parmelee said he didn't have the money. The Court urged him to get it rather than go to jail.

The Parmelees were married in Texas in 1918 while the aviator was an instructor in the flying school at Love Field. Since the war he has followed the air as a commercial and stunt flier.

In China there are said to be antiquities dating back to prehistoric times.

Simple Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when resting, and in the morning wash the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be shiny, soft, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Advertisement.

'LITTLE MOTHER OF PRISONS' TALKS IN S. F. TONIGHT

Maud Ballington Booth Gives Cheer to 2000 San Quentin Inmates.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, "The Little Mother of the Prisons," head of the Volunteers of America, will deliver the only lecture she is to make in San Francisco on her present tour at the First Congregational church at 3 o'clock tonight. Last night she addressed the inmates of San Quentin. Tomorrow morning she will speak to the prisoners at Folsom.

Among those who will be in the audience at tonight's meeting are: Chief of Police August Vollmer of Berkeley, Chief of Police Dan J. O'Brien of San Francisco, Warden James A. Johnston of San Quentin, Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson of San Francisco and a large number of ministers and social welfare workers.

EASY TO HELP PRISONER. It's easier to help a man in prison who knows he is wrong than the man who is outside who is wrong and does not know it. Mrs. Booth told the approximately 2000 prisoners in the prison chapel at San Quentin last night. She continued: "I do not consider that I belong to the outside world, but to you. I worked at first within the walls of the prisons, until you told me to work as well outside the prisons as bring better understanding to the world of prison problems and conditions. I have told the outside world that the prison is but the stepping stone for you to a better life, a new life, and that it is not a prison where lives are thrown away and wasted."

THERE TO LEARN LESSON. "You are not in prison to be punished or to protect society, but to learn a lesson, and it is up to each and every one of you to learn that lesson."

Bandit Who Held Up Chinese Is Captured

After a chase of two blocks, a holdup man, who told the police that his name was Fred Howe, was captured by two citizens after he had held up Wah Tai, a Chinese, last night.

He was held up in front of 389 Harrison street. The bandit hit him over the head with a piece of garden hose which was filled with lead. He took $5 and a gold watch and chain from him.

Commercial Art to Be Taught by U. C.

Commercial art will be one of the new university extension courses starting this week in Oakland. Otis Shepard, one of the designers employed by Foster & Kleiser's outdoor advertising agency, which places large billboards all over the state, will instruct the class. The study will include the principles of design as used in art, the use of line and form, preliminary sketching, type and composition. Students will be given practical work and will be asked to work up original ideas in advertising posters.

Wife, Baby Gone; Elopement Feared

Joseph Ferreria of 1063 Eighty-second avenue has appealed to Chief of Police J. N. Black of San Jose to recover his wife and child. Ferreria told the police that his wife has frequently threatened to elope with "her affinity," who had been offered a position in San Jose.

Saturday Mrs. Ferreria disappeared from their home, taking with her their 14-months-old baby. No trace has yet been found of her or the child.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Many Affairs For March Bride-Elect

Few brides-elect are being feted more extensively up to the time of their nuptials than Miss Gladys Partridge, fiancée of Louis Domeratsky, who arrived Friday from Washington, D. C. The marriage of the couple will take place March 4 at the Partridge-Benson studio in Leroy avenue, which is a most artistic background for the ceremony. Rev. W. H. Hodgkin of St. Mark's Episcopal church in Berkeley is to be the officiating pastor. Only relatives and a very small group of intimate friends will be assembled.

Thursday evening Professor H. F. Grady will give a stag dinner at his home in honor of Louis Domeratsky, who is assistant director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce in Washington, D. C.

Miss Partridge and her betrothed will shade the honors at a dinner tomorrow evening, at which the hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Odell of Piedmont avenue.

This evening Mr. and Mrs. Richard Neustadt have asked friends to dine to meet Miss Partridge and her fiancé. Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Underhill gave an informal dinner in their honor, and last Thursday, at the James L. de Fremery home, Mrs. A. E. de Fremery was hostess at an informal tea.

MANY ARE GUESTS AT TEA.

Two hundred and fifty guests were entertained Saturday at tea by Mrs. Harry P. Carlton and Mrs. Herbert Caskill at the Carlton home in Perry street. The honor guest was Mrs. Beverly Hall Carlton, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Harry Carlton. Mrs. Beverly Carlton was Miss Helen Grey, daughter of Mrs. Richard Grey.

Receiving with Mrs. Carlton and Mrs. Caskill were Mrs. Richard H. Grey, Mrs. George Grey, Mrs. Newton Koser, Mrs. Helen Brouse, Mrs. Philip Carlton and the Misses Gertrude Carlton, Olga Bruns, Grace Wilson, Inez Sutherland, Elizabeth Koser, Elizabeth Collins, Cella Baum and Margaret Deary.

Many friends on this side of the bay have received cards for a tea at which Mrs. Harry Bishop and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Jackson, will preside next Friday afternoon at their home across the bay. The guest of honor will be Mrs. Bishop's daughter, Miss Elsie Bishop, whose wedding to George Stimmel will take place March 8 at St. Luke's church in San Francisco. This evening Miss Bishop and her fiancé will be the honor guests at a dinner party planned by Mr. and Mrs. Leon Minton, and next Thursday afternoon a bridge tea in honor of the bride-elect will be given by Miss Lillian Katz. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop and their daughter made their home in this city until a couple of years ago.

HONEYMOON IN THE SOUTH.

George Russell Ellison and his bride have left for the southern part of the state, where they will travel for about two weeks, and will then return here for a few days before going to Portland. The young people will reside in the north for a while and later will come back to the bay region to establish their home. Mrs. Ellison was Miss Elina Ramsellus before her marriage, which took place Saturday evening at the home of her parents, Captain and Mrs. John Ramsellus, in Alameda.

From the south comes the news of the arrival of a small daughter at the home of Lieutenant and Mrs. G. C. Macdonald, and many good wishes are being sent to the proud parents. Before her marriage to the navy officer Mrs. Macdonald was Miss Anna Shea, one of the popular girls in the younger set here. Lieutenant and Mrs. Macdonald are residing in San Diego, where the former has been stationed for some time.

The three will sail from New York in the early summer and are planning to pass about four months traveling on the continent. Miss Cuyler is a beautiful girl and made her debut early this winter at a brilliant social function in New York. The family home is in Alameda, but will remain closed during the absence of Mrs. Cuyler and her family.

Nine Million Spent on Disabled Veterans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The American Red Cross spent $9,782,000 last year in assisting world war disabled veterans, John Barton Payne, national chairman of that organization announced last night. The principal service rendered was in putting the disabled in effective relation with the proper government agency in order to help them obtain aid to which they were entitled from the federal government.

Virginia Fairfax, an orphan, rebellious daughter of one of the first families of Virginia, tells her chum, Naomi Sanderson, of her later feelings against the rigid sixteenth century conventions of their little town and the tyranny of her grandfather, who adopted her when her parents died. Virginia confides to Naomi that she intends to run away from home to escape the tyrannical rule of her grandfather and her sympathizing aunt. Virginia fled in the night after learning that her real family name is Virginia Winston. Virginia introduced herself to a Mrs. Watkins. On the train to California Virginia learns that the strange gentleman with whom, by chance, she breakfasted, was Theodore Stratton, a famous moving picture actor. She is terribly upset when she recalled her conversation with him. Upon reaching Chicago she went with Mrs. Watkins to a hotel. Virginia found Mrs. Watkins, a wealthy woman, planning to impose upon her and left the hotel alone on a shopping tour. A callow youth made advances. She appealed to a policeman, who sent her a taxi to a large department store.

WESTWARD HO!

Arriving at Field's, I saw my reflection in one of the big mirrors near the elevators and immediately decided that my clothes made me look childish and unsophisticated.

I felt they would never do when I applied for a movie job and, after being directed to the suit department, I picked out a navy-blue street suit, very up-to-date. When I was trying it on the salesperson, who was a girl about my own age, said: "You ought to have a hat to go with this. I saw one in the millinery department this morning that would be just the thing. It was purple taffeta with queer little bunches of velvet forget-me-nots. It was a joy."

"Purple with navy blue?" I exclaimed.

"Yes, that is a beautiful combination. I will send up for it." While the girl went out of the dressing room to send for the hat I looked at myself in my new finery and chuckled a little at thought of grandfather's wrath if he should see me. My narrow skirt came only a little below my knees and I decided that when my legs and feet were uncased in tan silk stockings and brogues I would be very fetching. I determined to buy some before I left the store.

"I like my legs," I acknowledged with a blush as I turned and twisted to see them from every angle. Just then the girl returned with two hats, saying: "I saw this red hat and brought it along. When I looked at the purple hat again it seemed too old for you."

I let her put the red hat on me first, although until I saw it a red and blue combination seemed worse to my ideas than blue and purple. "Isn't it darling?" the girl exclaimed. And to my surprise the red hat was just the bit of color my costume needed.

"Why, you look like Mary Miles Minter," said the clerk. "She was in here the other day and bought a suit very much like the one you have on."

That settled it. If Mary Miles Minter wore a suit like this, it was certainly the thing for me to buy. I ordered my old dress and hat made into as small a bundle as possible and started for the shoe department. There I purchased tan brogues and Postum is a delicately-roasted, pure cereal beverage—delicious and wholesome.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, healthful beverage for awhile, and see if you will not feel brighter, more active, and more resistant to fatigue—as so many thousands of others have felt.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Yet this is what many people do who drink excessive amounts of tea or coffee. For tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance that is sometimes very injurious. Many doctors say that caffeine raises the blood pressure, irritates the kidneys, and over-stimulates the entire nervous system. Also that it is especially bad for growing children, or for any one who has any tendency to nervousness or insomnia.

navy blue stockings with red clocks. I was perfectly delighted, upon leaving the store, to find that my taxi driver did not recognize me, and was further pleased when I arrived at the hotel to pass Mrs. Watkins without recognition.

The nurse, however, said: "Here is Miss Winston now." Her eyes were sharper.

Mrs. Watkins looked me up and down approvingly. "I was going to be very much put out with you," she smiled more graciously than I expected, "but I see now that you had so much shopping to do that you knew you could hardly help me with mine."

We went into luncheon then, but I was so excited that I could not eat. Surprisingly I kept looking at myself in the long mirrors about the dining room. Finally Mrs. Watkins caught me at it and said: "Why, you vain little creature. I wish Theodore Stratton could see you now." And I knew that in my heart I had been wishing it, too, ever since I had gotten my outfit.

At the last it was a great rush and hurry to make the train, but finally Mrs. Watkins was settled in her drawing room and I found, to my good fortune, that I was in another car.

Perhaps because I had never been away from home, the trip to California was one kaleidoscope of color and never-ending joy to me. I was extremely anxious to see the desert, particularly after I had heard the young honeymooners on the seat in front of me express themselves as dreading the trip across.

"But," said the young husband,

"you must remember, dearest, that each time that you or I have crossed it before we were not together."

"And under those circumstances," interrupted the little bride, "I could not have been happy in the Garden of the Gods."

"Sweetheart," he murmured, and surreptitiously looked around to find that I was very much engrossed in one of my motion picture magazines.

Then bent over and kissed her. "I do not know why that caress made me think of Eddie Montforth and regret that I had not kissed him goodbye. Surely I was not in love with Eddie and most surely I never intended to marry him, but I felt now I would not have shattered my dignity or discarded my modesty had I kissed him goodbye forever."

I was not quite certain that I should be thinking such things, grandfather and perhaps even Aunt Virginia would probably have considered it not quite decent, but the lovers in the seat before me seemed so happy and oblivious to all else but themselves. It was a very human feeling of mine to wish that I might have had a little caress from my boyhood sweetheart to remember.

I was so engrossed in watching the married pair in front of me that I hardly saw Mrs. Watkins and her baby all the day. Toward night, on her way to the diner, she stopped at my section and rather complained that I had forsaken her.

"Like all young people, my dear, you are prone to forget everything in the interest of the moment. The new attractions in this car had evidently blotted from your mind all thought of baby and me. I think he misses you, my dear. He has been very fretful all day and I dread to think what he will do during the heat and discomfort of the desert trip."

I awakened the next morning to find myself looking across a great expanse of misty purple and rose and gray. I sat up in my berth in astonishment. Could this be that arid expanse of death and desolation that I had heard so many people decry? "Why it is beautiful!" I exclaimed. "Ever since the desert has held for me the mystery and color and appeal of my most cherished dreams. Tomorrow—Virginia listens in."

Art Blossoming in West, Says Sculptor

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Central and Western states of the country are undergoing renaissance in art, Lorado Taft, Chicago sculptor, declared yesterday in an address at memorial services for Solon Hannibal Borglum, the New York sculptor, who died last month.

Taft said the greatest material evidence of this movement was that art galleries were "blossoming everywhere, not as cold storage plants for works of art, but as places of inspiration for the talented."

A message from Jules J. Jusserand, the French ambassador at Washington, read during the service, called Borglum a "man of rare parts" and paid tribute to his "ability to catch in a remarkable way and perpetuate the living and breathing spirit of things."

CLARICE PATTERNS

Winifred Black FOLKS AND THINGS

One of the enviable things children have is their ability to follow the light of imagination.

Little Vera and Josephine were playing below my window, and I hear their chatter vaguely, as I sit with my book and half-dream in the light of the closing day.

"I shall wear a green dress," says Vera, "and if my gown gets home from the dressmaker's shop in time, I shall wear it."

White and silver it is—I am sure the emeralds Clarence gave me will go well with it.

"Surely," agrees Josephine—her soft voice with no note of envy in it. For she has a store of jewels where Vera keeps hers in the jeweled box of her imagination. "I shall wear my pearls—after all, they are my favorites."

"Like colors best, you know," declares her chum, and so the talk runs on.

Suddenly I hear a new note.

"I may give up going to the ball, after all," says Vera. "I may not feel that I can leave Glady's—she isn't quite well, you know."

There is a tender note as she speaks of her doll and there is envy in the voice of Josephine when she protests against the sacrifice announced as probable by her little playmate.

She wishes she had thought of the doll sooner. She has one of her own—a darling!—and she could have taken just the tone of Josephine if she had thought of it quickly enough.

But now they are off, the youngsters, in a canoe on an enchanting river, and both can paddle, so they say and imagine. What a ride they will have on the dreamy river, and how sure they are of themselves when they set off on the trip! I find the contemplation of their grassy paddling more peaceful than if they were really in one of the fairlike boats whose contour is so graceful and whose dullest note so great.

It lies around us like a cloud—the innocent grace and joy of childhood. And it lasts forever. The journeys of playtime never cease to live in the mind, unless you are of the kind which lets all the treasures go and never tries to recover them.

The house was built, my sister and I, in the bending tree above the stream, and then we cannot change it so very easily. History is full of stories of the great, who worked to do things entirely out of their line in the life thrust upon them, or perhaps toiled for the Great—so it is written—was miserable over his failure to entrance the world by his writings or his music. The French king, too, was happy only in his shop where he loved to make furniture. I know a lawyer who has a place where he works at shoemaking with supreme joy.

These are examples where happiness was sought in contrast to the life. And no doubt there was joy in the work itself, even if it failed when finished, to command the admiration of the world.

What shall we say of the people who have gone completely wrong—chosen a profession for which they are not fitted? The farmer who ought to be a lawyer—if anyone ought to be that profession—the shoemaker who chooses the ranks of soldiers—the cook who ought to be a Lady Bountiful, helping all the unfortunate around her—or the king who should be the butler?

Things come right always. And all round pegs in the square holes, and all that comes from being out of place!

Nothing of the learning of real things need spoil the play of the children. Their stories all turn out right, and they leave the spell of happiness over them as long as they live.

"Well, good night, dear, I will see you at the ball," says Josephine, as she climbs the fence and runs home at her mother's call.

"Good night, Vera," cries Josephine, and her voice is charged with love and content.

Abe Martin

"I am told that you and your husband are a falling out." "Never in your life, simply divorced."

"You keep a great stock of blank applications for marriage licenses, I see. More than you can use in ten years." "They tear up a great many in their nervousness. A paternal government allows for that."

"When the burglar emerged from the cellar, there was I with my revolver pointed straight at him. He said 'I'll throw up my hands.' 'Heaven, no! Life was carrying an awful of my home brew.'"

"But surely," said the faithful woman, "it is just as you say. He will be treated the same as other passengers and be allowed to occupy a seat?" "Of course, madam," the guard replied, "provided he does not put his feet on it."

"I left today in tears," said the young husband, tragically. "What shall I do, father?" "Send for your mother, my boy. Let the old lady settle your quarrel." "But that would be a matter of days, you know." "Then send for her dressmaker."

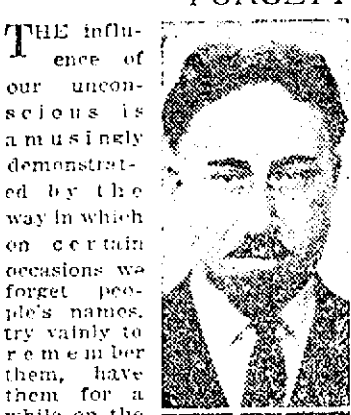

She—Does the fact that I have money make any difference to you, do you ask? Of course it does, my own. It is a comfort to know that if I should die you would be provided for. She—But suppose I should die first? He—Then I would be provided for.

What gets us is how so many folks that "pass in the day's news" manage to pass. Mrs. the Lark is nursing in the home of Mrs. the Mooms, whose husband is legitimately paralyzed.

PSYCHO-ANALYSIS

by ANDRE TRIDON

FORGETTING NAMES

ANDRE TRIDON

THE influence of our unconscious is a mysteriously demonstrated way in which on certain occasions we forget people's names, try vainly to remember them, say, "I know it, I know it," for a while on the tip of our tongue and then recall them when it is too late.

One evening I went for dinner with my attorney whom I have known for years. His name is and was, therefore, very familiar to me. We discussed certain business matters which were to remain a secret between us. After dinner we took a stroll and met another friend of mine, a journalist whom I have also known for a long while. The two men were not acquainted but as I was ready to make introductions, I realized that I could not remember the names of either of them. Being accustomed to name my mental states rather rapidly, I ignored the problem for a few seconds, kept up a flow of conversation about the weather and at the same time examined the reasons why I should unconsciously keep these two men in ignorance of each other's name.

The actual reason jumped into my consciousness rather rapidly. I had entrusted a secret to my lawyer. Might he not betray it to the journalist? A rather absurd supposition, which, however, for the space of a few seconds, called for protective measures. As soon as the cause of my memory lapse became clear to me, the names of my two friends came to my mind. I then very hypocritically apologized for not introducing them to each other, pretending that I thought they were acquainted.

If there is some one whose name you constantly forget, try and find out why you are unconsciously afraid of him or endeavoring to deny his existence. And likewise, when some one to whom you have been introduced several times seems unable to remember your name, talk the matter over with him, if possible. It may be that you remind him unconsciously of some one who in the past hurt him or humiliated him, and whom he has been trying to forget. Very often a simple inquiry and explanation are enough to remove the causes of unconscious hostility between two persons who would otherwise be very good friends.

Sammie Littlefield, the rabbit boy, had a drum. It was a new drum that had been given him for Christmas, and though he was only a rabbit, he had as much fun beating his drum as any boy could have in rub-a-dubbing on yours.

"Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang-bang-bang!" Sammie beat his drum in the rabbit house.

"Oh, Sammie, my dear boy," called his mother from the room where she was lying down and beating her head on the wall. "Only I can't go outside and beat it," he added.

"Why not, my mother asked him, though he was very anxious to please and was sure he was beating on parade. "Only I can't go outside and beat it," he added.

Holding a Husband

Adelle Garrison's New Phase

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

"That will be all right then," she said. "Jerry and me and Ticer will tackle one room upstairs and the kitchen today and tomorrow and try to fix 'em up. I don't mean the way you want them when the house is finished, but so that a decent woman can stay in 'em a few days without being afraid of coming down with some dreadful disease, or dying with the dirt. Then tonight we'll plaster the drugstore tight and fumigate the whole house. We'll probably have to go over the rooms again one at a time, but tonight will help out a whole lot. And then when you help gets rested, we can help them clean the place and get ready for the painters and paperers."

"Thank you so much, Mrs. Ticer," I said with a little shudder at the picture of conditions in the Ducey farmhouse which she had unwittingly drawn for me. "I will get the things all right."

"If you could bring them over to the farm when you return, it would save carrying them from here," she suggested. "We'll be over there working when you get back."

"I'll bring them to you," I promised, slipping out to the porch where Dicky was smoking his after-lunch cigar. "Got the domestic details all settled, old dear?" he asked, rising.

"I brought my hand to my forehead in a dazed salute.

"Everything satisfactory, Captain?" "Then let's heat it to that telephone. Come on!"

And so potent had been the effect of a tender romantic idealism, I found myself caring no whit that the projected telephone call was to the house which held Edith Fairfax.

"Hello! Hello!"

Through the door of the telephone booth I could see Dicky pressing the receiver up and down as he reiterated his impatient call. And when he finally emitted an impatient, "What's that?" and put the receiver in his hand, I was surprised to hear him say as he came breathless and perspiring out of the booth:

"They don't answer! Now, what's to be done?"

"I suppose they've all gone into town," I suggested. "You know Mrs. Durkee loves nothing better than a trip into New York, no matter what the thermometer is, and she's probably taken Edith and Lella with her."

"Well, I wish she had been a little less of a salamander today," Dicky declared. "How the dickens are we going to find out anything about what Jim and Katie meant?"

"We can't, that's all," I said philosophically. "We will have to meet all three trains tomorrow so as to be sure not to miss them. So you imagine Katie if they landed out here and she didn't see a familiar face at the house."

"I imagine Jim would take care of her hysteria and the situation all right," Dicky returned carelessly.

"Pouf!" I retorted, snapping my fingers. "According to Katie's ideas, wonder where Katie got her philosophy on the proper place of husbands in this mundane sphere? Not from her early training in Poland, I'll bet two ginger cookies."

His tone pointed his meaning unmistakably, and while his ironic mood was unmistakably an innocent and merry one, yet there was that in his inflection which made me conscious of an undercurrent of belatedness, and rendered me distinctly uncomfortable.

We had reached the street with the end of Dicky's sentence, and I was wondering how best to answer him, when the consciousness of a duty undone, freed me from the necessity of referring to his glib at all.

"Oh, I must telephone the hospital!" I said hurriedly. "And, what do you think? Don't you think I can wait till tomorrow afternoon to go over there? That first train will be in by that time, and I shall be so fearfully busy before then."

Dicky laughed down at me quickly.

"Do you think, don't you think," he repeated. "What's the matter with the original shakiness on diction this morning? It can't be she's flustered."

I turned away abruptly that Dicky might not suspect how near the tears were to my eyes. But the next instant he was at my side, laying a compelling but unobtrusive finger on my arm.

"Go ahead, boil me in oil, I dare you! I'll call the cop," he whispered, and, of course, I laughed, my worried irritation vanishing at once.

VOLSTEAD ACT REPEAL URGED BY LABOR MEN

A. F. of L. Executive Council
Favors Sale of Beer and Light Wines.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
OAKLAND WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Repeal of the Volstead prohibition enforcement act and substitution of a measure permitting sale of light wines and beer was urged yesterday by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in a statement which called upon all citizens to join with the labor organizations in a campaign with these objects in view.

The statement denounced the Volstead act as "a social and moral failure" and "a dangerous breeder of discontent and contempt for all law."

The council, which concluded a week's session Saturday night, previously announced its intention to participate in the congressional elections through a non-partisan campaign committee which will endorse and oppose candidates of major political parties, or enter independents, if that course is considered most effective.

"Before this decision was reached," the council's announcement said, "there was caused to be made an exhaustive investigation of the Volstead act. It was shown by this investigation that there had been a general disregard of the law among all classes of people, including those who made the law."

"Creation of thousands of moonshiners among both country and city dwellers."

"Creation of an army of bootleggers."

"An amazing increase in the traffic in poisonous and deadly concoctions and drugs."

"An increased rate of insanity, blindness and crime among users of these concoctions and drugs."

"Increase in unemployment."

"Increases in taxes to city, state and national governments, amounting to approximately one thousand million dollars per year."

The federation did not protest against the constitutional amendment embodying the prohibition policy, the statement emphasized, but considered the Volstead act "an improper interpretation of the amendment" and stood instead for "reasonable interpretation in order that the law may be enforceable and enforced."

Lafayette Square

Is Being Improved

Lafayette Square, near Chabot hall and around it, is being improved as a result of the school construction department moving to Chabot hall. The lawns are being replanted, and old trees and shrubs replaced by younger and better ones.

Lafayette is but one of several squares now being reorganized so far as funds permit. A movement is afoot to cut off the north end of a small triangular "parklet" on fourteenth avenue to allow a street to be cut across it. This, however, is the only shrinkage in Oakland's park territory completed. The original bulbs in city hall park, which were frozen to death during the big frost, have been replaced, and the new ones are fast coming to bloom.

'Tear' Bomb Used By Police in Raid On Criminal Nest

CLEVELAND, Feb. 27.—Failing in their efforts to gain entrance to an apartment here, where it was reported a gang of alleged safe-crackers was living, police today resorted to a "tear" bomb. A window was broken and the bomb thrown inside. The result was almost instantaneous. Four men and three women surrendered and were taken to police headquarters for investigation.

JEWISH LEADERS BANQUET GUESTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Dr. Nahum Sokolow and Professor Otto Warburg, Zionist leaders, here in connection with a world-wide tour in furtherance of the proposed plan to make Palestine into a "homeland" for all Jews, were the guests of honor at a banquet last night at the Palace hotel. The affair marked the close of their visit to this city.

Dr. Sokolow thanked the Jews of this city for their whole-hearted response to the plan for creating a national Jewish homeland. Professor Warburg spoke on the great need of such colonization. The speakers were addressed by Harris Weinstein. Those at the speakers' table, in addition to the guests of honor, were: L. M. Golden, L. I. Lipsitch, Dr. Henry Harris, Adolph Koshland, Harris Weinstein, Eugene Elkus, Eugene Roth, Rabbi Martin A. Meyer, H. J. Rothchild, H. L. Zollerbach, L. M. Voorsanger, Rabbi Jacob Nieto, Rabbi Herman Lissauer and Leo J. Rabinowitz.

Church Folk Urged

To Support Treaties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(By International News Service.)—More than 55,000,000 church members in the United States were urged today in a call that went out from federal council of the Church of Christ in America to support the conference treaties now pending in the Senate and ask the Senate to ratify them. The message also asked church people everywhere to hold popular meet-

Pupils Thrive on Extra 'Nickel Meal'

As a result of a consistent "fastening process" at Tompkins school, the pupils at that institution are now fast rounding into the class of well-nourished children, and the percentages of underfeeding are falling. In another year it is believed that the pupils of this school at least will be in the "normally fed" class to the last child.

The test is being done by the milk and butter served at 10:30 each morning, the "nickel meal" served at that time to those who can afford it, and "unranged" for those who cannot afford it.

The more fortunate boys and girls who do not need the extra nourishment have "adopted" others who cannot afford it, and the entire school is now all cared for.

The message also asked church people everywhere to hold popular meet-

Girls Chosen for Chiropractic Fete

The names of four of the ten girls, all about 16 years of age, who will portray the nations of the world at the international costume ball to be given by the Chiropractic Defenders' League, Saturday evening, March 11, at the Oakland Municipal Auditorium, were announced today.

Miss Marie Leandowski, native of Poland, will represent her native country, while Ethel Oliver will typify the spirit of Holland. An added feature will be the dancing of Miss Daisy Dean of New Orleans, who will personate "South of the Mason-Dixie line."

Railroad Seeks Big Loan to Build Tunnel

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Finance applications filed today with the interstate commerce commission included an application from the receivers of the Denver and Salt Lake in its application announced it intended to use its loan, if granted, to construct a six-mile tunnel through the Rocky Mountain divide, which the line crosses 117 miles west of Denver.

The commission announced it had authorized the Illinois Central to assume liability for the payment of $2,225,000 in equipment trust certificates which have been sold to purchase new rolling stock.

A national costume ball, symbolizing world-wide peace, will be held.

Mrs. J. M. White is heading the committee arranging the ball.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

IRVIN S. COBB

A Mistake in Identity

In the town where I was reared there was a combination bar-room and lunch-room for colored only, known as the Bleeding Heart Saloon. It stood at the foot of a street near the head of the wharf and was a favorite resort for river darkies. Among its regular patrons was a brawny individual six feet, four inches long and correspondingly broad, who answered to the pet name of Red Hoss. Red Hoss posed as a bad man. He let on, as the phrase runs, that he was the undertaker's best friend. To be sure there was no record that he actually had ever destroyed any one, but he frequently promised to do so, and was rated as dangerous by the resident colored populace.

One night the Cincinnati and New Orleans packet on her way south landed at our town. Among her deck passengers was a small yellow man, a professional prize fighter from up North. On the journey down the river he had introduced his own private set of educated ivories into the crap game among the roustabouts, with the result that he now had all their money in his possession.

Dapper, trim and slim, he climbed the wharf and entered the Bleeding Heart and called for a jolt of slug gin. He was in the act of paying for the drink with the top film of a delectably fat roll of green bills when the swinging doors were thrust violently asunder and in stalked Red Hoss, slightly intoxicated and therefore doubly belligerent. His lowering, bloodshot eye swept the interior, then focused with a greedy stare upon what the slender stranger held in his hand.

Lurching slightly, he swaggered up to the bar and gripped a huge soiled paw on the lapel of the little yellow man's coat. "Say listen, pussen," he stated. "You better turn dat bundle of soft money over to me, an' en I'll give you back what part of it I think you should have for yourself."

"Who is you, may I ask?" inquired the visiting neophyte in gentle accents. "You better ask!" growled Red Hoss. "Finding out who I is meks yo' chances fur livin' longer all de brighter if you aims to stay round dese parts. You ast me who I is, huh? Well, I see you not there when I see de new town hall, tha's what! Yes, sah; I see de official bully of dis town an' w'en a strange dicker hits yere he mos' gin'elly hands me over what spare change he's got an' tha's his life ins'urance. So—"

He had not finished the sentence. Stupefaction and rage tied his tongue temporarily as the audacious strip-tease with a jaunty posture brushed free of the detaining clutch and turned to the barkeeper, saying, pleasantly:

"Mist Barkeeper, 'at shorely wuz very tasty zin. I thinks I'll tek me one mo' slug outen de same bottle, if you please."

Red Hoss recovered his faculties. With a berserker yell he swung with a huge fist for the little man's jaw. The jaw was not there when the fist whizzed past. The pugilist ducked, and came up expertly with a short arm jab which landed exactly on the point of Red Hoss's chin. There was a jar as a large inert body struck the floor.

Three minutes later Red Hoss slowly and dizzily roused himself. Some Good Samaritan had restored him to consciousness by slinging a bucket of water over him. Dripping and dazed, he sat up, holding his aching head on with both hands. The little man stood at the bar blowing softly upon the knuckles of his right hand and conversing with the barkeeper upon the topics of the day.

"Mister," quavered Red Hoss, "who is you?"

"Me?" said the stranger, "Oh, I is merely the pussen you thought you wuz w'en you come in yere."

THE TAILOR WHO WENT MAD.

Once upon a time, dear children, there was a darling little tailor who spent all his days making clothes for everybody who would stand still long enough to be measured. He was never so happy as when he was cutting up a lot of good cloth to make a few bum clothes.

trust that you understand what daddy means by the quaint colloquial word "bum." It is not often that daddy stoops to the usage of the patois of the proletariat. (Johnny, get off the piano.)

Every day men would come in and say to Stephen (for it was indeed he), "Stephen, make me a suit of clothes," and Stephen would get out his tape measure, go all over them fondly and minutely and then make them whatever sizes of suits he preferred to make. Sometimes he took pieces of chalk and figured out these sizes all over the suits they were wearing, and sometimes he allowed himself the rare pleasure of figuring out on their lapels or trouser legs just what his profits would be if he ever had any, but usually his tears fell so fast when he got the answer he couldn't bear to look at it.

One day a tall man named Julius came in to see Stephen. "Stephen," says he, "make me a suit of clothes," and Stephen proceeded to get out his worn tape measure and go all over Julius. Then Julius picked out the most expensive cloth in the house and the most expensive lining and three of the most expensive buttons, and three of the most expensive button holes to go with them. And then he went away, with some of the profits on his back where the tailor had figured them and forgotten to rub them out. Anyway, they were so small you could hardly see them.

Well, one day Julius came to get his clothes and they were beautiful. Of course they didn't fit like his old suit, but then, as Stephen said, the fellow who made that suit was a loafer and couldn't tailor anyway, so that was all right. And then Julius did a most unheard-of thing.

"Stephen," says he, "I'm going to do something that nobody has ever done to a tailor before. Look." And with one movement he took out a check for the full amount of the bill and gave it to Stephen the Tailor.

Stephen turned pale and threw his arms around Julius to keep from falling over in a faint. Then he staggered over to the window for fresh air. Never before in his forty-three years of tailoring had anybody ever done this to him. He turned to thank Julius for his unheard-of deed, but Julius had gone.

And, children, Julius never came back.

But the check did.

That is why Stephen the Tailor went mad. And that's the end of the story. Gwan to bed.

MAX OSER SAYS HE NEVER WAS DOWRY HUNTER

Swiss Riding Master Gave Mathilde McCormick Time to Decide.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—No definite arrangements as to time or place will be made for the marriage of Max Oser and Miss Mathilde McCormick until Harold F. McCormick and his daughter come to Switzerland, according to a statement made by Oser to the correspondents of the Associated Press. He considers that the best plan would be to have two homes, one in America and one in Switzerland; thus both could keep the home ties and old friends.

"I was never a dowry hunter," said the Swiss riding master. "Our romance began with mutual respect and friendship. When the question of eventual marriage arose, I gave Mathilde her liberty; I told her to go into the world and make new friends and see life; then if she still wanted me, I was always here."

Cheap Eggs for Lent Assured by New Price Drop

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Cheap eggs for Lent were signalled today by a new drop in quotations. Today's prices showed a fall of a cent a dozen per day for the last ten days. The wholesale quotation for first quality eggs here today was 24 cents, as against 34 cents on the corresponding day a year ago, as well as for ten days back this season.

Mild weather and big receipts were the reason assigned for the decline in the egg market, a decline in notable contrast with advancing values of late for other farm produce.

and said she could do nothing with young men; she preferred older men and men of knowledge, with whom she could talk sense and discuss seriously subjects and problems.

Mathilde informed her father of this last year's photograph. Oser exclaimed: "Look! both physically and mentally Mathilde is more developed than her age. We have many tastes in common; both like sports, art, architecture, literature, languages, and, above all, home life. By the way, we speak the Swiss dialect—German between ourselves."

Oser took occasion to deny reports of John D. Rockefeller's plan, or the offer of a highly remunerative situation in America. He said he would like to become an American, but added:

"I cannot wait the number of years required by American laws; that would be asking too much of mortal man. I think both of us prefer a modest wedding in Switzerland to an elaborate affair in America, but that can be arranged."

Oser is of athletic build with a strong face. He wears a closely cropped moustache, has pleasant eyes and his hair is tinged with gray. He wears an engagement ring bearing his family crest—the gift of Mathilde. He had just returned to his Zurich home from his hunting farm and which, combined, will be the couple's future home.

CROWDS GATHER IN LONDON FOR ROYAL WEDDING

Princess Mary to Be Accompanied to Abbey by King; 16 Clergymen to Aid.

don together, alone for the first time in their lives.

They will be accompanied by ladies and gentlemen in waiting. As an evidence of the tremendous demand for tickets to the Abbey to witness the wedding, it was learned today that many of the highest nobility have been unable to secure admission. Apart from those peers holding court posts only 64 peers and peeresses have been invited, with a similar number from the House and their wives. Representatives of the various grades of nobility and commoners within the parliamentary groups will be there.

One journalist, two photographers and one artist will represent the world press. Frank Salisbury, famous British artist, already has begun work on an immense canvas, by royal command.

The only foreign royalties who will be present at the Abbey during the wedding ceremony will be the Infante Alfonso and the Infanta Beatrice, children of the king of Spain, Prince Nicholas of Rumania and the Grand Duke Michael of Russia. The Norwegian and Belgian sovereigns, who have been expected, will not attend. Should any other sovereigns unexpectedly arrive in London before tomorrow, they will be present at the ceremony.

A change in the program preliminary to the ceremony requires that the coach in which the king and princess will arrive at the Abbey shall be followed by two carriages containing the lords and ladies in waiting. The bridesmaids will arrive separately and will await the bride at the Abbey door.

Morse Indicted by Federal Grand Jury

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Indictments against Charles W. Morse, New York shipbuilder, his three sons, Benjamin, Harry and Ervin; Collin H. Description of Gowns In Princess' Trousseau

LONDON, Feb. 27 (By the Associated Press).—Princess Mary's trousseau is described as "youthful looking and the last word in smartness." In contrast with her magnificent bridal gown, of cloth of silver with gossamer overdress embroidered with pearls and gold, and court train on white duchess satin, the remainder of her trousseau is of marked simplicity.

Most of the frocks are seven or eight inches off the ground, and they reflect the new notes in early spring fashions—the low waist, the girde, the Grecian straight shoulder-to-shoulder skirt and the low neck, the bell sleeve, the short sleeve and the three-quarter skirt, adapted to the various times of wearing and many other fancies that will be seen in flood-tide presently when spring is really here.

"The going away" dress is in the soft shades of pink and blue for which Princess Mary has always shown a preference. It is of powder blue charmeuse embroidered in long narrow line panels from the yoke to the hip of the dress in self-colored silk and palest coral beads and crystals, with a sash of blue charmeuse tied loosely at the side. Over this will be worn a moleskin wrap. The sleeves of the gown are of elbow length, and the bodice is cut slightly low in front.

Flowers have inspired Princess Mary's new evening dresses. One is of blended orchid mauves. Georgette arranged over a satin underdress, fantastically worked with arum lilies and silver sequins, forms this dress and it is full of harmony for a bride with golden hair and rosebud skin.

Queen Mary gave Princess Mary some priceless lace from her noted collection, and this has been made into a simple dinner dress with draped net sides, held in by a chiffon waist band. There are tiny pink roses at the waist and pink roses at the foot gathered in little fresh clusters.

Blue has been utilized for two additional evening dresses, one of sky blue satin and chiffon with diamante shoulder straps and belt and a second of sapphire blue and gold with a short underdress of the two shades. There is also an eau de nil chiffon tea gown that is a triumph of the dress designers' art. It shimmers from neck to train with gleaming iridescent spangles.

A real lace evening gown in deep cream color is made with straight panels and a draped baby bodice; the skirt is slightly draped at the side and caught in at the low waist with a chiffon sash held in place with bunches of dark and light pink roses and finished with a big bow at the back. There are bunches of pink roses holding up the cascading lace at the bottom of the skirt. It is mounted on real lace net.

A gray crepe jersey afternoon frock, embroidered in its own color, has a round throat and is pleated at either side and finished with two little tassels. A tea gown in sweet pea color has mauve chiffon plotted over blue with fine white lace edging, the overdress and sash in the colorings of the gown being finished on either hip with a huge begonia. An afternoon frock of point de flandre, left of the princess, is specially tinted and mounted over biscuit crepe de chine; the waist band of old rose and blue satin ribbon has floating ends at one side.

There is a navy serge coat frock—a new material that is very fine and light.

GABARDINE FROCK.

A brown gabardine frock is one of the smartest day frocks in the trousseau. It is embroidered in broderie glaze in beige and brown silk and has a brown silk girde and a beaver collar, while the vest is pink georgette and lace.

Wear the wedding dress in driving to the abbey is a lovely Russian ermine stole wrap, very wide on the shoulder and giving the effect of a cape with stole ends. There is a fringe of ermine tails round the neck and the back of the collar and stole velvet and covered with white chiffon. The going-away coat is of moleskin with alternate stripes of the fur running reverse. A mole pillow muff will be carried with the coat.

In North Audley street is that very quiet and unimposing shop of Albert Welch, whose granddaddy made shoes for King George IV and other members of the older generation of the royal house. Today he is supplying Princess Mary with some of her most important footwear, including a pair of peerless white satin woven and destined surely for the greatest of ceremonial occasions, inasmuch as they are to have a pair of lovely diamond buckles, given to Queen Mary.

LOW HEELS.

Princess Mary wears shoes cut on the smartest lines, but without any exaggeration. The heels in no case exceed one and three-quarters inches in height.

Princess Mary, like her mother, has a standing order that neither paradise plumes nor ostrich shall appear in her millinery. She very much likes the present style of small, closely fitting hat, rather sharply turned up from the face. An effective example on these lines, a part of the trousseau, is in black satin, upon the upstanding brim of which are set flat conventional daisies in jade green and gold.

There is one hat which has the very latest novelty for trimming in a spray of flowers formed of small shells tinted with pink and blue upon shape having a raised brim in sapphire blue velvet, lightly veiled in a gray lace.

S. F. Dealer Beaten And Robbed of $400

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Two armed bandits held up the soft drink parlor of John Sullivan, at 1399 Valencia street, early today, and escaped with $400. Four customers were at the bar when the robbers appeared. They lined them up with their hands in the air and then approached Sullivan. The latter hesitated before obeying the commands of one of the pair and was struck over the head. The robbers took $350 from his pocket and $50 from the cash register, making their escape. Sullivan was treated at the Central Emergency hospital for a badly lacerated scalp.

PRINCESS MARY'S COAT OF ARMS IS USED IN WEDDING

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Many persons have been inquiring about Princess Mary's coat of arms, for the details are wanted for many purposes in relation to her wedding. Some have even asked for particulars of her crest, quite ignorant of the fact that she has none, and, as a princess, never will have one, says an authority on heraldry, writing in the Daily Mail.

The royal arms are not hereditary. In the form in which they are generally seen they belong exclusively to the King. Every other member of the royal family has, or should have, a separate warrant under the King's sign manual assigning to them a "differenced" version of the arms.

There is no particular date or occasion on which these warrants are issued, and sometimes they are entirely overlooked, as happened in the case of the late Duchess of Teck.

But sooner or later something occurs which creates the necessity for arms. This happens at any rate when a prince is made a Knight of the Garter, and his arms are needed for his stall-plate and banner in St. George's chapel.

RULES FOR PRINCE.

For the Prince of Wales there are many rules relating only to himself, but the one only instance of the royal family all have the royal arms "differenced" upon certain recognized lines. None of them inherits the King's motto, "Dieu et Mon Droit," the sovereign determines the pattern of their coronet, and each of them has a distinctive "label."

All princesses have their arms on a "lozenge" instead of a shield. Princess Mary's coronet, as the daughter of the King, is a golden circlet composed of the royal crown, but without the arches. That coronet is placed above the lozenge and on the head of the lion supporter and around the neck of the unicorn supporter.

DIFFERENCE IS TOLD.

Princess Mary's label is one of three points. All the royal labels are white and are never painted silver. This is the only instance in heraldry in which white is differentiated from silver, though they are generally described as "argent."

Except on the royal arms, no label is ever depicted in gold or silver or white. The differences in the royal arms for members of the royal family are in the coronet and the label. While several may use the same coronet, no two ever use the same label, and it is in the "charges" upon the points of the label that the distinctive differences occur. Each of the points of Princess Mary's label is charged with a cross of St. George. The label is placed across the upper part of the lozenge and on the shoulder of each of the supporters.

WHEN FREIGHT MOVES.

"The increase in the number of carloads of freight shipped have been so substantial and persistent since the opening of 1922," says the Railway Age, "as to constitute a very persuasive indication that general business is reviving." Such is the fact. The railroads hauled more freight during the first twenty days of February than for any other similar period since 1919.

To draw further the above-quoted journal of the railway business:
Not only did the number of carloads of freight shipped increase in every week from that ended January 7 to that ended February 4, but in each of these weeks the total shipments were larger than in the corresponding weeks of 1921. The total freight car loadings in the four weeks ended February 4, 1922, were 2,956,766, as compared with 2,812,637 in the same weeks of 1921, an increase of 144,129. While the total number of cars loaded with freight in these weeks was somewhat less than in 1920, it was larger than in 1919 and, in fact, seems to have been larger than in other previous years.

The most significant feature of this increase in shipments was that it was due to an increase in the number of cars loaded with most kinds of commodities. In the four weeks ended February 4 there was an increase, as compared with the same weeks of last year, of 33,810 cars in shipments of grain, 2960 cars in shipments of livestock, 17,666 in shipments of coal, 129,476 in shipments of merchandise, and 1062 in shipments of miscellaneous commodities. Shipments of coke showed a decline of 11,000 carloads, shipments of forest products a decline of 4450 carloads, and shipments of ore a decline of 16,000 carloads.

When carloadings began to show an increase in the second week in January it was thought that this might be due to temporary causes. The taxes on transportation were removed on January 1, and it was believed the decline in freight shipments in December was partly due to the fact that some shippers were holding back commodities to avoid paying the tax and would forward them in January. If, however, the increase in shipments had been due to the release of goods held back to avoid the tax, it would hardly have continued at an accelerated rate clear into February.

The acceleration in the movement of railway traffic seems to be general and consistent. It is plainly not due to any special cause of tax law, time or locality. Business throughout the country is improving. Producers are shipping, dealers are buying, factories are getting to work on a rapidly increasing quantity capacity. Business for the railroads means business in all other quarters.

DELAYED PUNISHMENT.

Scarcely a day passes without some complaint about the prevalence of crime and some suggestion as to how to treat the problem. Prevention of crime, deterrents to crime, protection of the public, are the main considerations of the problem, with reformation of the criminal an important, but a secondary factor. Too many people have thought that reformation—through social dealing—should come first.

But why cannot the police authority, the law officials and the courts agree upon such an essential and clear point as this: The thing which most impresses the law breaker and deters crime is the immediate punishment of criminals, after trials quickly started and efficiently conducted.

Long delays in starting trials, the frequent postponements that a culprit out on bail is able to obtain from the courts, incompetency in prosecutions permitting offenders to go free—these are the main causes of failure in present systems to prevent increases in criminal activities.

Delays before trial, delays in the courts, delays between trial verdicts and the beginning of punishment of the guilty—these make the criminal glad and encourage crime. If a man can give bail his escape from punishment is about 75 per cent accomplished. He is able to have his case postponed, to raise up technical obstructions, to have his counsel "examine" jury panels and to increase otherwise his chances of escaping punishment. Yet there is no excuse in law or reason for a man out on bail not being brought to trial just as speedily as a man in jail without the advantage of bail.

Then after the trial court has been finished there is the delay in appealing the case, which the culprit on bail always is able to enjoy. The delay of the appellate courts in handing down their decisions is beyond all reason. These courts are pursuing a dilletantism which actually is perverse of justice and encouraging to crime. As a typical case an Oakland woman was convicted two years ago of a felony. Her case is still in the courts of appeals. Punishment has been postponed two years, and while at large on bail she is permitted to keep other offenders from jail by the bail device.

So long as any pleader on the crime problem ignores the destructive influence of delayed trials and delayed punishment the public would do well to disregard his views altogether. Prompt and adequate punishment for crime is the most effective deterrent to crime.

PRUNE WEEK.

San Jose and Santa Clara county are responsible for this being designated as National Prune Week. When a single county becomes so ambitious as to demand that national attention be focused on one of its agricultural products it is to be admired, it is not to be denied.

But Santa Clara has qualified by performance for assuming this place in the sun. Her production of the prune has added to California's fame and wealth. It has greatly enriched the nation's food supply with a delectable, health-giving and nutritious dish.

The slogan of the week is "eat prunes." The prune has had a varied career. For many years it was the butt of boarding-house jokes. During the war it played an heroic role in the diet of soldiers, and it became, because of the demand of the army and navy and the famine-stricken populations of Europe, an aristocrat of the American table. Now it is getting back to normal prices and to the usual channels of trade and consumption.

The people should eat more prunes, as they should eat more fruit of all kinds. Get better acquainted with the prune! Congratulate Santa Clara county!

STILL TAKING TOLL.

The nearer the world approaches political and mental tranquility the more plainly one can see the toll of reputations taken by the great war. We cannot say yet that these reputations have been totally destroyed, but they certainly have been severely, if not mortally, hurt.

G. Bernard Shaw was found wanting when the test came. H. G. Wells wrote a brief for Bolshevism, flashed momentarily before the disarmament conference at Washington, flickered off trying to tell that conference just how it should conduct itself, and then went home. He has been silent since. The Wells ego will have another bizarre outbreak perhaps, but the world will shake its head and smile.

In this country many writers and speakers of note got off wrong. They have tried to brazen through the aftermath and have spoken upon occasion to make it appear they were not ashamed, but in reality they are through as respected leaders of thought.

Soon this unlovely company will pass on into oblivion. They will be happily forgotten.

During the last week two other steamship companies have made Oakland their port of call on the continental side of San Francisco Bay. The shipping business is picking up. Last week eight ocean-going freight carriers loaded and unloaded at one Oakland wharf. Now is the time to give every encouragement to the shipping business by increasing port and terminal accommodations. It is easier to move with the tide than against it.

LITTLE FOLKS' POOR, RICH DIET.

Not every parent knows the full explanation of the frequent weeping and measuring of children done nowadays in public schools. It has to do with surprising facts about nutrition.

Better a wooden spoon in one's mouth at birth than a silver one. The better spoon is more likely to carry to the mouth wholesome food that will make for mental and physical growth. Experts in dietetics studying the condition of school children have discovered in many cases that the pupil from a well-to-do family was more up to date than the one from a middle class or even a poor family. The ill-fed child makes a backward pupil. Only a few weeks on a properly regulated diet will make a marvelous change. They will bring the child up to normal weight and furnish him the necessary vim for good school work.

South Orange passed on receiving the report of its Board of Education that one-third of the children in its schools were undernourished. One school official perhaps came as near as possible to summing up the situation when she said: "A mother's care cannot be replaced by a servant's judgment." Not even the trained nurse employed by a wealthy family can reliably replace the mother with talent for her job.

Children, for example, may not like wholesome foods; they may clamor for sweet dishes and push away the plate of more punishment. It takes a mother's firm patience to overcome childish dislikes for dull foods. The wisest nurse might lack the temper or goodwill to prevail.

It is a pity that children bred in plenty should be elevated to the advantages of good schools because they do not have enough real food to eat. All the more so as poorer children constantly demonstrate how easily nourished a sound young stomach usually is.—New York Sun.

(*) First time on record cantaloupe and soup rhymed. Lyrics from the Almanackers will be filed alphabetically.

J. Wilberforce Sloop listened silently as the fair Madeleine spoke the words which sealed his fate. Turning, he made his way, somehow, to the door. He slumped it and—Strode forth into the night!

"That is the worst of it," he hissed, getting a queer thrill as the sibilant sentence slid over his whistling teeth. "A man in this predicament is supposed to stride into the night." A thought struck him. He shivered with the shock. "I must stride," he said.

"But where?"
Walking into the night, he found, was no simple task. It was coming on apace, dodging the air lights and hanging high over his head. He grut, gritted his teeth and strode.

"I'll see this thing through," he said, "if I have to walk all the way home."

In the mansion of our heroine there was desolation and hysteria. Madeleine dressed in studied abandonment to grief sat in front of the mirror dabbing powder on a tear-streaked cheek.

"Why did I refuse him?" she sobbed time and again, adding intriguing variations as she progressed.

The pale girl stood long at her easement looking at the stars and sneezing at the night air. "He has had time," she said in a hard even tone. "I will ask him."

"Has Mister Sloop strided, stridden, strode home yet?" she asked of her secretary, and then, when he came, she breathed, "Why, Wilberforce, did I refuse you?"

The answer crackled under a wire like peanut brittle over a troy hatchet. "I have," she said. "I have refused him." "I have," she said. "I have refused him."

The mansion of Madeleine's father echoed with a sigh torn from her soul. "I'll carry on," she groined, "to the last belated installment."

With what follows we add our contribution to a serious and somewhat acrimonious discussion engaging the attention of learned circles. We would see that certain of our educational institutions will not be prepared to resume a regular schedule of brain development until the status of the flapper is definitely determined.

An old book, called "Wright's Caricature History of the Georges," would show that flappers and the clothes they wear were matters of concern as far back, at least, as 1773. There is this, for instance:

Your neck and your shoulders both naked should be.
Was it not for Vandegre, blown with chevaux-de-fris!
Make your petticoats short, that a hoop eight yards wide.
May decently show how your garters are tied.

In the days of the "buffoon," "clash" and bustle there was plenty of opportunity for the caricaturist and jester and, it may be said, the wedding which moves up and down with the changing styles, behaved in the same manner when the Georges were on the throne. A sudden shift in style called forth the following:

Shepherds, I have lost my waist!
Have you seen my body?
Sacrificed to modern taste,
I'm quite a hoddie-doddy.

From which it would appear that while there may be a change in the style of flappers, the old order of derision chumeth not.

Poor Princess Mary, with her silver gown and her new tiara, is to approach the altar in one of the world's most elaborate weddings without an ode from Robert Bridges. What is a poet laureate for if not to sound his measures when royalty is born, wed or vanished? The princess, if she is a good cook and takes kindly to housework, will get along all right in spite of the poet. She will find it possible to keep house without an ode, and yet one can imagine her silent hours of grief. Bridges should be fired at once, and father should lose no time in purchasing a ready-made ode to do duty for the occasion. Had there been time, it is quite certain some of the Almanac poets would have been glad to do their bit to help.

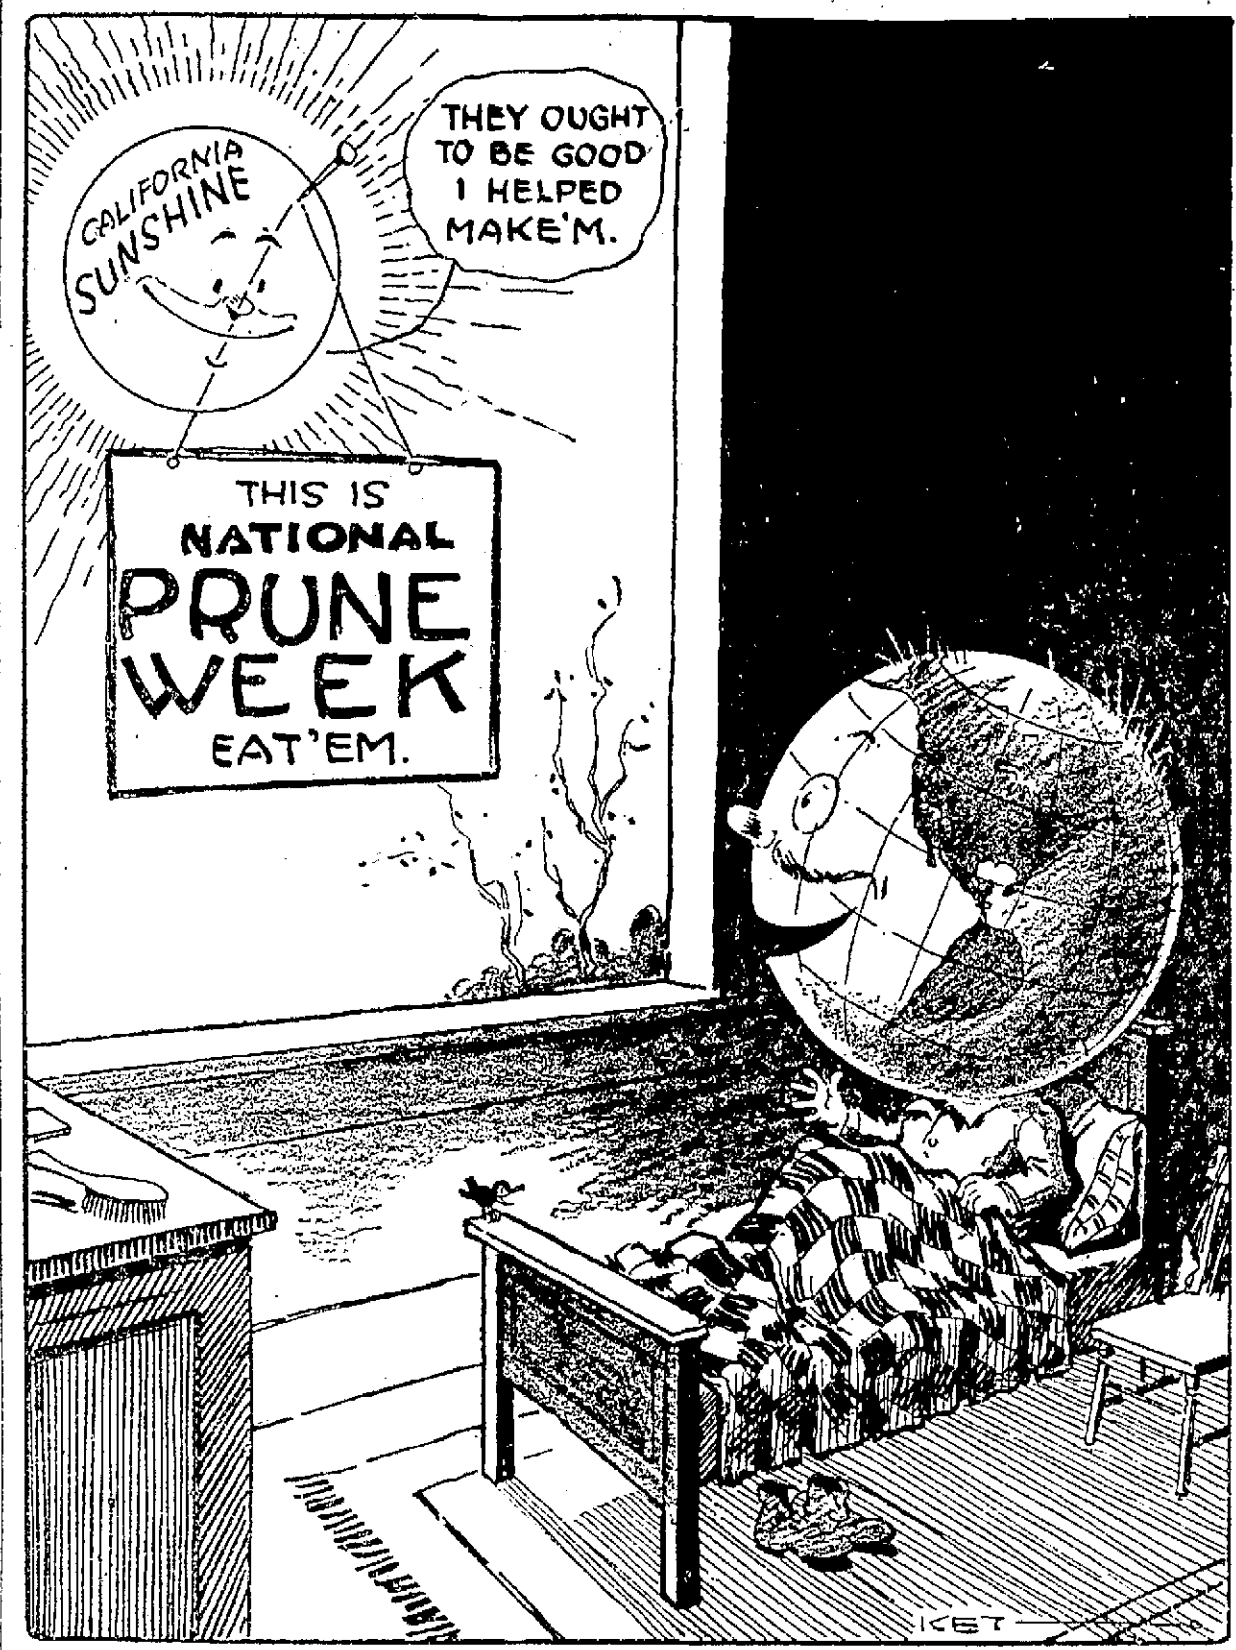

She was a princess, beyond compare.
Compared beneath a lead;
Yet bowed beneath an odious son—
The poet withheld the ode.

Often She Does.
She—since matrimony is always entered by women in an elaborate wedding gown, why should she not emerge from that troubled state in an equally elaborate divorce suit?—

NOTES and COMMENT

After knocking on wood one may reflect with some satisfaction that there have been few postal robberies since the mailmen went on the job.

There is a new "save a billion" campaign. It does not, however, refer to money but to heathens, the estimate of their population being at that high mark. The mathematicians may figure it out for how many heathens each individual is responsible.

Too much regulation chafes in Oregon, according to the Medford Mail-Tribune. The Whispering Forum met in the alley yesterday and launched a campaign to take religious views out of the soul and place it in the hands of the self-satisfied. As soon as everybody believes the same and a commission is appointed to regulate worshiping, as telephone rates are adjusted, war will be waged on the vertical system of handwriting. It is about time the legislature took steps to see that people had their Christianity rammed down their throats with a potato masher.

The passing of a time-honored institution is remarked in the New York Herald: In the ten years beginning with 1911, the number of dressmakers and seamstresses in New York City, not including those employed in factories, decreased from 38,850 to 22,785. It would be interesting to analyze the causes of the drop in the number of these workers. Perhaps ready-made clothing for women accounted for it in part, but dress pattern publishers find ready markets for their products. In war days much clothing was remodeled in homes for patriotic buyers of Liberty bonds. The passing of the visiting seamstress would mark the close of an interesting chapter in social evolution.

MAINE BIRTHDAY PARTIES.

"When it comes to staging birthday parties the State of Maine is going to stand in a class by itself before the year 1922 is over," said William F. Hawkins of Bath, Maine. "Five Maine towns were incorporated in 1822, and they are going to observe the centennial of their births this year. The towns that are preparing the celebrations are Dover, Monson and Parkman in Piscataquis county; Cooper, in Lincoln county; and Dutton, in Penobscot county.

Each of these towns is characterized by New England and Maine industry and agriculture have played large parts in making their inhabitants substantial citizens. Dover, the largest of the five, has a population of 5000 and is one of the most thriving and bustling communities in the State. It is the center of a rich farming district and poverty has never touched its people. Monson, with a population of some 2000, is the state town of Maine. All the other places are considerably smaller, but each is important in its way. Cooper is situated farthest north, being near the Canadian line. It is well known throughout all New England as a hunting ground.

Giving birthday parties for Maine towns is getting to be quite the thing. In the next few years many other towns will stage parties similar to those planned for the five places I have mentioned. The parties run along somewhat the same lines, with pageants and centennial ball in each township as the major attractions."—Washington Post.

about YOUR HEALTH

What Spring Cleaning Means to Home and Health.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

Housecleaning time will soon be here. How I dreaded it when I was a boy! Pulling tacks and beating carpets were the bane of my life. Modern boys know little of the trials of their male ancestors. You know, I am prone to take the side of the woman in most matters of domestic controversy between the sexes, but when it comes to housecleaning I believe I am for the men, because the average woman takes a kind of savage joy in that semi-annual performance.

The modern devices for cleaning are to a great extent due to the determination of mortal man to escape the agonies of housecleaning time. At least this much of real good has resulted from the suffering of the male population.

Now I must square myself with the women or I shall be in overhauling disgrace.

When the turmoil is ended, the radiance of her home is reflected in the radiant face of the housewife. In spite of her mental happiness, however, she is entitled to a vacation after the ordeal. She should be given that little visit to some friend or relative, a visit she has planned for such a long time.

As to the housecleaning itself, there can be no doubt of its importance. With hardwood floor and rugs which are taken out regularly there is not the same need for thorough renovating which otherwise exists. But at least twice every year every inch of woodwork should be washed with soap and water. Needless to say, that is not enough for those rooms which are in constant daily use, but the whole establishment should have a semi-annual bath. Painting is not so essential where cleanliness is the day-by-day practice.

Clear out from the closets, the basement and attic all the rubbish and cast-off articles of dress and household equipment. Left to accumulate, this material furnishes a fire hazard and becomes the breeding place of rats, mice and other vermin.

The mattresses, pillows and heavy bedding should be renovated. There are ways now of washing pillows, feathers and all. You want the pillows sweet and clean. It is indiscreet to use them year after year and pass on as heirlooms pillows which have never been cleaned.

I have been in houses so dimly lighted that I wondered what had happened. One glance at the electric-light bulbs and glass globes answers the question. Fly specks and "the dust of ages" all but obliterate the light. Keep every lamp chimney, bulb and globe clean, and save oculist bills.

No clothing should be put away dirty and become the breeding place of moths and the germs of disease. Housecleaning should be an everyday affair, but the spring and fall cleanings should be what they are—real cyclones.

They make for good health and long life.

COUNTY WORKERS PLEDGE PART OF SALARY TO IDLE

Giving impetus to the proposed drive of the citizens' emergency employment and relief committee for funds for the unemployed, the employees of the Alameda county court house and hall of records have pledged one per cent of their salary for a period of eight weeks.

Under the direction of J. Cal Ewing, campaign manager, an attempt will be made to have each worker in the city subscribe one per cent of his salary to the cause of unemployment. In this way the committee plans to raise an aggregate sum of $60,000.

The campaign will officially open on next Friday at a luncheon in the Hotel Oakland which will be attended by the organized workers and representatives of the various lunch clubs and civic organizations in the Eastbay district.

According to the plans of the committee the drive will be carried on in all of the big industrial plants and every place that men and women are employed. The slogan will be "One Per Cent Gives a Job!" A drive for larger subscriptions among business men and employers is now in full swing under the direction of Oliver Kehrlein.

The collected funds will be used not for charity but to provide work, according to Thomas Eaglesome, chairman of the committee. Although no definite plans have yet been made on the distribution of the funds, Eaglesome says that it will be used on public works.

The committee plans to continue road work and other improvements for the city, employing men from the Municipal Woodyard at $2.50 a day. The same system in regard to wages is kept so that each man registered at the woodyard may be able to assure his family of a given sum each week.

In isolated extreme cases the money will be given as charity.

NEW PROTEST ON STADIUM PLANS MADE

Councilman of Berkeley Says Funds Were Collected for Permanent Concrete Stadium, Not Redwood Seats

BERKELEY, Feb. 27.—Vigorous protest has been registered from various sources against the proposed selection by the university regents of the Strawberry canyon site for the new University of California stadium.

Today Councilman Charles D. Heywood, one of the workers in the campaign for funds, denounced the move and declared that the university is guilty of "accepting money under false pretenses."

"Subscribers to the million dollar stadium fund were promised a concrete stadium which would stand for hundreds of years," said Heywood. "They were not asked to subscribe to a stadium to be decided upon later. They were given definite promises before they subscribed."

"If all that the university wanted was a type of stadium like that at Stanford a million dollars was not needed. I have no issue with the Strawberry canyon site and I think the protest on the ground that it will mar the beauty of the section is foolish."

ASKS FAIR PLAY.
"All that I am appealing for is fair play to the thousands of Californians who gave money for a memorial stadium to the war heroes of the university and not a lot of redwood seats and of flimsy structure like that of Stanford. Either the university should live up to its promises or return the money."

Meanwhile telegrams have been sent to Governor William D. Stephens asking that he halt the action of the regents in selecting the site. The regents have expressed their willingness to grant a hearing to opponents of the stadium site and a meeting will be called next week, according to present plans.

One of the telegrams sent to Governor Stephens was decided upon last night at a meeting of 200 alumni and residents of North Berkeley at a meeting in Cloyne court, Leroy avenue and Ridge road.

HERE IS PROTEST.
The telegram to the chief executive read as follows:
"Regarding proposed site of stadium for University of California. Regents have planned for Strawberry Canyon, but public opinion has not been consulted. Adverse sentiment rapidly spreading. Strawberry Canyon insufficiently large to great crowds and too limited for future stadium."

"Also very objectionable aesthetically. Project contemplated by regents seems to be a vision of vast and inadequate vision of future development of academic and varied athletic needs. Respectfully urge your excellency call halt to enable public opinion to be fully consulted."

"Question not transitory but affects coming generation. Public opinion should be canvassed in state and county and especially neighboring cities. Accessibility of autos and for, also large grounds should be provided for enduring structure satisfying public pride as at our other great universities."

"Kindly stay proceedings and consult the people as to future of what is their university and greatest university west of Michigan."

SITE PROTESTED.
At the meeting the project was criticized by Beverly Hodgehead, the chairman, as inaccessible and he said that it was his belief that the engineers planned to excavate a deep gash as far as the Big C making a scar which could never be obliterated in the contour of the Berkeley hills.

Among the other protests sent by friends of the University to Governor Stephens was one from Walter T. Stielberg, architect, who said that the architects had not been consulted in choosing the site as follows:

"Use of Strawberry Canyon site for stadium is very questionable from architectural and aesthetic viewpoint. It does not have approval of university architect and others of the profession in this region who have investigated."

"Regents' choice probably due to inability to visualize the stadium from drawings. Accurate scale model should be made before any work whatever is done. Immediate restraining action imperative to avert damage to state property. Earnestly petition immediate delay pending investigation."

Still another protest comes from the Campus Protective Association addressed to the faculty, faculty alumni and friends of the university.

TAMALE MAN IS GIVEN 6 MONTHS AS WINE SELLER

BERKELEY, Feb. 27.—Tamales and wine don't mix, so Patrick Juarez, proprietor of a tamale parlor at 1233 San Pablo avenue, discovered this morning.

Juarez was given six months in the county jail for selling wine to Officer O. W. Wilson in the back room of his tamale parlor. A marked dollar given in payment, a bottle of white wine and three glasses were introduced in court as evidence. Juarez entered a plea of guilty.

D. T. Jones, who gives his occupation as an analytical chemist, also was arrested last night by Officer Wilson in company with Officer W. P. Dean for making and selling liquor at his residence, 1010 University avenue.

Fatal Accidents Drop 31 Per Cent in California Factories

The decrease in California industrial deaths for the years from 1914 to 1921 is 31.2 per cent per 100,000 of population, according to a report in the current issue of the California Safety News, published by the State Industrial Accident Commission.

"It is a source of gratification that such a substantial reduction in the industrial death list for a period of seven years can be presented to the public," writes Will J. French, the editor. "It heartens those who have been active in spreading the gospel of 'Safety First.'"

The publication for February also contains articles by F. L. Lowell on "A Non-Fatal Injury Year for Gold Dredging;" G. E. Kimball, electrical engineer, "But What of Your Brother's Safety?" R. L. Hemmingsway, chief boiler inspector, "Should Agricultural Boilers Be Exempt?" L. Dea Miller, safety engineer, on "Safety Straps on High Lead Blocks," and Will J. French on "Safety in Laundries."

Avenue Extension Will Be Considered

ALAMEDA, Feb. 27.—The next meeting of the city planning commission, which is to meet this week, will take up the mooted question of the opening and extension of Veranda avenue through from Santa Clara avenue to the estuary. This will give Alameda another outlet for automobile traffic through to the High street bridge and to the estuary. The lands of the Landsberger and Baum estates for park purposes probably will be consummated at the meeting.

U. S. FOREST STATION FOR U. C. GET SO K.

Supervisors Express Approval of Senate Measure Providing $50,000 for Experimental Branch of State School

The Alameda county board of supervisors today passed a resolution endorsing Senate bill 2031, providing for the establishment of a forest experimental station in co-operation with the University of California, now before Congress.

The sum of $500 was appropriated to be used in grading of grounds around the county hospital, the work to be done by men now out of employment.

Senate bill 2031, endorsed by the supervisors, follows:
"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the sum of $50,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated to enable the forester of the United States Forest Service, under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, to establish and maintain a forest experiment station in co-operation with the University of California, and he is hereby authorized and directed to conduct silvicultural, dendrological and other experiments and investigations independently or in co-operation with other branches of the Federal government, and with states, universities, colleges and individuals to determine the best methods for the forest station and conservative management of forest and forest lands, and for the protection and handling of brush or chaparral growth on water sheds, important in the supply of water for irrigation and other purposes."

Berkeley Playground Facilities Increased

BERKELEY, Feb. 27.—As an antidote for unwholesome diversion for young people Berkeley is carrying on a greater playground program than ever before in the history of the city.

This fact is revealed by George Hjelte, superintendent of playgrounds, in a report submitted to Mayor Louis Bartlett. Eighteen play centers have been established in all parts of the city, declares Hjelte, where activities for children are systematically organized for after-school hours and on Saturdays. This number includes five municipal playgrounds and the remainder school play centers.

Parents of eight schools where supervised play centers do not exist at present have watched the work in other parts of the city with such great interest that recreational activities will probably be extended to all schools of the city, says Hjelte.

SOLONS OPPOSE EXTRA SESSION ON APPORTIONMENT

Early Replies to Governor
Stephens' Questionnaires
Show Adverse Stand.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27.—Responses received early today at the office of Governor Stephens, in reply to his telegraphic questionnaires yesterday asking members of the state legislature whether in their opinion an extraordinary session of the legislature should be called to consider reapportionment, indicated overwhelmingly that senator and assemblymen were opposed to the special session, it was unofficially stated.

The replies, it was said, indicated that legislators felt that it was useless to hold a special session to consider legislative reapportionment alone. The adverse attitude of Congress as to congressional reapportionment was said to have been mentioned as a reason for not holding a session of the legislature.

It was stated at the governor's office that a statement would be given out later in the day as additional replies to the questionnaires came in. Most of the responses received this morning came from Central and Northern California.

Governor Backs Judge In Bank Probe Case

OKMULGEE, Okla., Feb. 27.—Interest in the situation growing out of the recent dismissal of a grand jury investigating the affairs of the defunct Bank of Commerce here by Superior Judge H. L. Christopher, took a sudden turn today with publication of a letter from Governor J. M. B. Robinson declining to accept Judge Christopher's resignation. Judge Christopher offered his resignation upon request of a citizens' mass meeting and left town.

In his letter, the governor explained to the judge, who contended that the grand jury had been "hand-picked" and not chosen according to law. Another grand jury was impaneled today in Judge Mark L. Bosart's court to take up the matters investigated by the dismissed grand jury.

Witness Accused of Shielding Prisoner

Becoming impatient at the alleged intention of Joseph Pacheco to shield Antonio Bruzzoni, charged with murder, Deputy District Attorney Earl Warren appealed to the court to compel Pacheco, witness at the trial, to answer promptly. Bruzzoni is on trial for shooting Gust Markowitz, a veteran of the Spanish-American war and of the world war, on October 9, 1921.

Markowitz was shot in front of Pacheco's home, 3045 Chapman street, Oakland. He had accompanied J. E. Hinz, a collector for an Oakland furniture store, to Pacheco's where Hinz went to collect a bill.

Examination of Pacheco occupied the greater part of the day. The prosecution expects to rest its case probably tomorrow morning. Senator Frank Carr attorney for Bruzzoni, will endeavor to show Bruzzoni shot Markowitz in self defense.

FLOOD DAMAGE TO BE CHECKED

PLEASANTON, Feb. 27.—At a recent meeting of the board of trustees plans for preventing further inroads of the waters in the Arroyo Del Valle creek on the property of the town and the cooperation with the property owners along the banks of the stream were taken up. The recent flood waters during the past storms have washed away large portions of the bank and the matter is regarded as serious. The trustees are considering planting blackberry and other vines with closely knitted roots along the banks of the stream. This they have been advised to do as a break for the current during the flood waters. The board authorized that railings be placed on St. Mary's street near the banks of the creek to prevent anyone from running off the street and over the embankment. The trustees have ordered the date of April 10 set for the municipal election and will advertise for officers to conduct the election. Arrangements are being made to have the town marshal appear in uniform hereafter. The olive drab color has been selected for the uniform. The next regular meeting of the board will be held on Monday evening, March 6.

The accident occurred at the crossing at the western limit of town. The jury also conducted an inquiry into the death of Antonio M. Santos, who was found dead in his home at Danville, recently. The verdict was poison by legal self-inflicted intent. The interests were under the supervision of Coroner C. E. Donnelly.

Japanese Will Found Farm Colony in Sao Paolo, Brazil

Scenes on the Ribeira river and a typical farmhouse on the mainland. Two photographs of the sort of livestock the settlers are raising.

The Government Gives 250,000 Acres Along the Ribeira River

With three thousand Japanese already established and additional immigrants preparing to go, an extensive Japanese settlement will soon be in evidence on the Ribeira river in the province of Sao Paulo in Brazil.

This was made known by I. Aoyagi, managing director of the Overseas Agricultural Development company of Tokyo, who is now in San Francisco after a tour of the new Japanese holdings, and is preparing to return to Japan with a report of the conditions.

The Brazilian government has made the Japanese a concession of 250,000 acres of the rich country along the Ribeira river, allotting thirty-five acres to each family of three. The Japanese are farming and raising hogs and cattle.

It is in evidence on the Ribeira river in the province of Sao Paulo in Brazil.

The farm products are rice, coffee, sugar and potatoes, including the mandiocca, a sort of sweet potato, which achieves a length of three or four feet.

Ex-Member of Mills Faculty Is Dead

SANTA CRUZ, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Elizabeth King Stevens, who was at one time on the faculty at Mills College, died yesterday, at the home of her friend, Mrs. E. M. Cook, Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Cook both being graduates of Mt. Holyoke College, Massachusetts. Mrs. Stevens also had spent two years at Vassar.

She was born at Morristown, N. J., 76 years ago, and for twenty years resided in Vermont, where her home in California had been about fifty years which had been spent between Oakland and Santa Cruz.

In Oakland she was a member of the First Congregational church, but transferred her membership to Santa Cruz.

Her husband died about twelve years ago and she is the last member of her family.

Rio Vista Cannery Will Be Enlarged

RIO VISTA, Feb. 27.—The California Packing Corporation is moving a number of their houses from the Grand Island plant to the local cannery to accommodate the families of the additional men to be employed this season. The announcement was made at the meeting several weeks ago that the Vorden plant would not operate this year, caused preparations to be made for a larger crew than usual. This week announcement was made that the Rio Vista plant also would be enlarged for the year, necessitating a still further increase in the force in Rio Vista.

According to company officials here, the coming season is expected to be the most successful in the history of the plant. Plans for the erection of a newer and larger plant next year are being discussed by the officials of the company, work to be started early in the year.

The new plant, it is said, will be equipped to handle additional vegetables and fruit in large enough quantities to prolong the canning season three or four months, making it last six or seven months in future years, as well as offering employment to about two hundred more people.

Decline of 7 of a child per family has taken place in the United States in the past forty years.

Whitehead Case TO BE CARRIED TO SUPREME COURT

City Attorney's Office Prepares to Appeal On Pension of Ex-Fire Chief.

Although the Appellate Court has sustained the demand of former Fire Chief Elliott Whitehead for retirement on a half-pay pension after twenty-five years of service, the city of Oakland will fight the case to the Supreme Court, according to admissions made today by members of the city attorney's office. An appeal to the high court is being prepared. The city, according to officials of the city attorney's office, holds that Whitehead did not really serve twenty-five years as an actual fireman, but that he was given a leave of absence some years ago to the Civil Service Board when he came chief. It is intimated that the leave of absence for the time limited his employment and he then entered the political field.

The position of the city, according to the officials, is as follows:

When an officer of the police or fire department leaves the position of chief, which is a political office, he automatically loses the protection of his civil service rating and takes his chances as a politician in the future. He cannot be a politician and be protected by civil service in his lower office. Civil service was not intended to give a man a chance to make a political excursion from under the shield of its protection.

Matthew Fitz Gerald, Rail Builder, Dead

Matthew Fitz Gerald, pioneer railroad contractor and early settler in California, died last night at his home in this city, following an extended illness. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Minnie Fitz Gerald, and a son, Harold J. Fitzgerald, member of the editorial staff of the OAKLAND TRIBUNE. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed. The services will be held under the auspices of the Masonic order.

Born in Ireland, Fitzgerald came to the United States with his parents when a child of two years. In 1870 he took up his residence in Oakland. His home has been made in Northern California for many years.

Associated with his brothers in the railroad contracting business, Fitz Gerald was the builder of many of the important lines of the Southern Pacific company. He also built the Oakland avenue line in this city. The Gerald was actively associated with the Masonic order. He was a member of the Blue lodge in Healdsburg and of the Royal Arch in Vallejo. He fought throughout the Civil War with the Northern forces. Fitz Gerald was a member of Lyon Post, Grand Army of the Republic, and prominent in the work of that patriotic organization.

INFLUENZA SUFFERERS

Fong Wan Herb Specialists had a wonderful record of successfully treating many influenza cases. All those who had taken his herbs were saved in 1918.

Two of the most severe sufferers were Mr. Ben Norwick and Mrs. Mary Dias. Mr. Ben Norwick was in such a terrible condition that it was necessary to remove him from the Oakland Auditorium hospital to his home. After taking the famous Fong Wan Herbs, he was a well man. The ex-Police Chief's wife, Mrs. Nedderman, advised Mrs. Ben Norwick to try the Fong Wan Herbs.

Mrs. Mary Dias of 26th St. E. Oakland, also had influenza and was in a family condition for four months in a dying condition, but after taking two weeks of Fong Wan Herbs, she was better than when born, were in good health. For further information, one may consult the Fong Wan Herb Specialists free.

No Place For "Flu."

During the epidemic of influenza, Y. L. Chan herb specialists having prepared a remedy called "Influenza Must Go" were overwhelmed by demands. They were so successful because they were so efficient. One of their San Francisco Chinatown stores alone they sold as many as 1000 boxes of this medicine in a single day. These herbs are harmless and positively leave no after effects.

AMERICAN FOOD TRADE IN EUROPE SHOWS VITALITY

Prices of Grain Are Gathering Strength Despite Good Crop Prospects.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—British trade returns for 1921 reveal a surprising degree of the strength of American food products sales, according to figures received by the Department of Commerce from Special Representative Dennis. The wheat market, which had for six months shown a tendency to decline, has been revived by the wheat crop from the southern hemisphere. The new Argentine crop is reported of superior quality, some areas in the attractive basis of full-out-turn drafts at 80 days' sight, makes a strong price for the British market. The price of corn improves with that of wheat. Better feeling prevails, particularly in the forward market.

FOREIGN CROPS GROW.

There has been a gratifying increase in the value of business in the grain market, while wheat, barley and corn are over 1913. The value of wheat imports doubled, and that of barley tripled. Corn moved a gain of $1.00. The decline in value of wheat was governed by the law of diminishing consumption, as the harvest is displaced by the European market. Mexican Petroleum made an early high in New York at 124, up 1 1/2, net, and all the early sales of California Petroleum were above 54. Studebaker opened up 1 1/2 at 102 and quickly sold fractionally higher. This was a new high for the year. Chandler opened at 70, up 1/2, and also a new high on the move. New high price records for the season were attained today in the wheat market. May delivery at the opening in Chicago jumped to within 1/2 of $1.50 a bushel, the goal to which bulls some time ago had directed their efforts. A fresh advance in quotations at Liverpool was the principal incentive for today's upturn. Free selling to realize profits ensued. The opening ranged from 1/2 to 2 1/2c higher, with May $1.48 to $1.49 1/2, and July 1.26 1/2 to 1.27.

Corn and oats ascended with wheat to the highest prices yet this season. May corn was at 69 1/2c. Oats went further up grade.

Provisions were lifted in value by the advance of grain and hogs.

VALUABLE DOG POISONED. ALAMEDA, Feb. 28.—A dog poisoner is at work in Alameda. Yesterday the valuable collie dog belonging to P. W. Oliver, 1542 Third street, was poisoned. Oliver reported the loss of the dog to the police. He has offered a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest of the poisoner.

JOSEPH DRAKE. "When I say that I weigh twenty-five pounds more than I did a short time ago I speak volumes for the merit of Tanlac," said Jos. B. Drake, 430 Belmont Ave., Springfield, Mass.

The first thing Tanlac did for me was to give me an appetite and tone up my stomach. It wasn't long before I was eating things I hadn't dared touch for years and anyone to see the healthy way I am now would find it hard to believe that a few weeks ago I was dyspeptic and living on the lightest kind of diet.

"Another good thing Tanlac did for me was to drive the rheumatism almost entirely out of my system. In fact, I can truthfully say it has made me feel like a new man in every way. It certainly is a grand medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Oakland by the Owl Drug Company and leading druggists everywhere. —Advertisement.

WOMAN, 98, HERE
TO OPEN SCHOOL
IN GYMNASIUMSDr. Davenport, Near Century
Mark, Says People Can Live
As Long As They Wish.

When people really want to live long they will live long, in the opinion of Dr. Charlotte de Gollier Davenport, who is in Oakland looking for a site for a school of physical training. Dr. Davenport says she is 98 years of age and that her oldest son, now living in Paris, is 80 years old. She announced today that she intended to give a lecture at the Hotel Oakland some time this week.

Dr. Davenport's theme is right living and right thinking. "I believe that when people want to live long they will live long," she declared today. "We must live long if we wish to get anywhere. Intellectually because we don't become really intelligent until we are well past 70."

"Proper digestion is essential to long life. We must eliminate all poison. We must accord proper recognition to all things profitable for the mind. We must discard the unprofitable things."

"Today is the day. Yesterday is past, tomorrow has not come into existence. We must live in the present."

Dr. Davenport says she devotes about 20 minutes each day to military setting up exercises. She declares the use of cosmetics by women is a waste of time and money.

Although wearing a military mark she is as strong and active as a woman of 29. Correct walking is essential to health, she declares.

Dr. Davenport is a Polish. She is the daughter of Count Paszkowski and the Countess Tarnowsky. She came to America 45 years ago.

BERKELEY, Feb. 27.—It was cold and damp last night and to be locked outdoors with no place to sleep made matters slightly worse for J. P. Johnson, 53, 3925 Adeline street.

So Johnson warned up by walking to police station.

"My wife won't let me in," he told Officer L. H. Browning. "Furthermore, she threw a water pail at me and threatened to kill me when I tried to get in."

Officer William Peck accompanied Johnson to his home. There his wife, Mrs. Johnson, was waiting.

The couple expressed their intention to obtain a divorce.

Papeete in Midst

Prohibit Landing

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—A violent plague has broken out at Papeete, according to passengers of the Union steamship liner Tahiti, which arrived in San Francisco this morning. As a result no passengers were allowed to go ashore in Papeete, and the ship was subjected to a strict quarantine when she arrived in this port.

Among the passengers was a former princess of Tahiti, who is now the wife of Judge Eugene Semmon of Papeete. She is on her way to Paris with her husband. The princess was heartbroken over the fact that when she left Papeete she had to leave behind her pet, a ten-foot shark, which she had caught several years ago before it had assumed its present proportions.

Among other arrivals was also Miss Emily Stevens of New Zealand, who is going to Los Angeles to produce a motion picture play of her own. Miss Stevens and her friend, Miss Anna Munro, indulged in the sport of shark fishing while their ship was in the port of Papeete, and the two girls captured a six-foot specimen.

C. Holdsworth, president of the Union steamship company, also arrived on the Tahiti, and was met by Mayor James Rolph Jr., President Holdsworth comes to confer with American steamship magnates on the shipping question in the Pacific ocean.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—"No Vacancies." This sign hung on the apartment house of C. J. Rapken in Golden Gate avenue today following his advertisement which read:

"The process of having children has become a mighty expensive one and if I can help out in any way I will do so. A month's rent or so is a lift at such times."

Pelican Gives 'Low-Down'
On 'Flappers' at U. of C.

BERKELEY, Feb. 27.—Here it is! The real "dope" on the college flapper!

Robert L. Ingram, whose declarations that co-eds like cave men tactics and are strong for kisses brought down the ire of college women throughout the country on his head, is responsible for presenting the campus with new sensations in today's issue of the "Pelican," comic monthly of which he is editor.

From the highly colored cover depicting a college woman in abbreviated skirt puffing away at a cigarette to its cartoons and verses, "Pelican" is full of material which does not promise to improve the disposition of the much-criticized college maid.

Under the initials "T. L." here's the flapper defined in verse by a Pelican contributor who hesitates at signing his full name to his poetry:

Her hair's composed of rats and puffs.
Her cheeks are painted pink.
Her smiles are false and merely bluffs—
She's not what you would think.

Her eyelids shine with "lasherine."
Her nose is powdered white.
Her face is soaked in "illy cream"
When she retires at night.

Her form is padded (like a cell,
Her own is long and thin).
She thinks that she's the city's belle
And rings the fellows in.

She dots upon the movie star.
And raves about the moon.
She loves the man who owns a car.
And likes to fake a swoon.

She snickers, giggles, smiles and flirts.
And thinks she's having fun.
She very seldom really works.
Except when chewing gum.

She shines her nails and paints her lips.
She's jewelled—head to toes.
She shrinks her waist and pulls her hips—
She's dippy over shows.

You see her almost everywhere—
I'm sure you know her well—
She's fashion's only lawful heir.
Ding Dong! The college belle!

"Flaps" is the title of another contribution, the author of which fairly signs his name "Woodyard Kindling." It begins:

We're flap—flap—flap—flap—in through the University,
Flap—flap—flap—flap—in through the University.
Boys—boys—boys—boys—hangin' all around again—
And we all—know—what—they're for!

Here are some of Pelly's quips:
Bart: Is Jean conveniently married?
Ding Dong! The college belle!
